Busy Chicago Chez James Simpson Walter Chrysler Visits Ford About Wang Lung's Sons

By Arthur Brisbane

CHICAGO, March 11—Everybody in Chicago is busy, but all find time to ask, knowing that you come from New York, "What news is there of the Lindbergh child?"

The "Century of Progress" Exposition in Chicago, which you must not miss, will open on time in June, 1933. Every city, big and little, should pay the expenses of its mayor to the exposition and back, and make him promise to examine the wonderful architectural development of the Lake front. That Lake front has an especially valuable lesson for proud New York, with its endless miles of hideous, grimy waterfront, to which poor mothers and their children have no access.

If it is your desire to hoard, keep out of Chicago's stores.

For instance, an energetic young woman on her way to a ranch in the West spent two hours in Chicago yesterday while waiting for her train.

She went to Mr. James Simpson's store—every merchant knows which one that is—to buy two old-fashioned Canton flannel nightgowns, with long sleeves and high neck for use on the windy ranch.

She bought them both but before she got to the nightgown place, on the fifth floor she had bought three bracelets and one necklace.

She was about to buy a dress in addition to the nightgowns, an extremely pretty dress of pale pink satin, with daintily embroidered rosebuds in front and no sleeves. Fortunately it turned out to be a nightgown.

Blocking her way to the elevator was the shoe department, with particularly fine "pumps" of black suede with low heels. Some of those were bought.

Then came the door, and the automobile revolving round and round the block because it could not park.

But before the door came the watch counter, in charge of Mr. Sunshine, who smiles in a fashion worthy of his name. He sold three watches to the lady who wanted only two Canton flannel nightgowns.

One was a dainty wrist watch with little diamonds on it, one was a rugged wrist watch for a young man, the third was a big watch that you could put under your pillow, guaranteed to keep absolutely perfect time.

The moral is that much depends on salesmanship, and display of goods.

The next stop on this trip will be Detroit, where everybody is making, thinking, talking and planning automobiles. These news items come from there.

Mr. Abbott, of the Hudson Company, informs you that you will be met with a car built by William J. McAneeny especially to accommodate a dictating machine to be used while motoring.

Mr. McAneeny, president of the Hudson Company, who had seen this writer's home-made arrangement for an automobile phonograph, built a special body with a dictating machine that fits into the cushions of the back seat, and comes down like the arm that is lowered to divide the rear seat in some cars.

Progress never ceases.

The Detroit Times news department sends this on the telephone: "Walter Chrysler, rambling along at 60 miles an hour from Detroit to Dearborn a little before 11 o'clock this morning, taking with him two engineers, was on his way to show to Henry Ford his new Plymouth, to appear about the first of April."

Henry Ford, in Chrysler's opinion, is to automobiles what Mohammed is to Mohammedanism. And Chrysler drives out with his engineers to Dearborn to show his new car to Ford and ask, "What do you think of it?" As a devout Arab might journey down to Mecca, to look at the Kaaba Stone, from which Mohammed mounted to Heaven, and get some inspiration there.

Mr. Chrysler had already told this writer, at Ziegfeld's first night, "when you see the new Plymouth you will see SOMETHING."

You see something when you see any first class American car. The thing is to BUY it, OWN it, USE it, and feel prosperous.

Will Rogers went to China, and flying back read Pearl S. Buck's book on China, "The Good Earth." Says Rogers, "go get this book and read it. It will teach you all about China and you will thank me."

Many have read the book already, and will be glad to know that a sequel to it called "SONS" is published by Pearl S. Buck in the April COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE, just published. This continued new story tells you what happens to the sons of Wang Lung, the hero of "The Good Earth" and how one of them, Wang, third of the sons, who left his father's court "a wild, angry lad" comes

Let Me Find Baby, Is Capone's Plea to Brisbane

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

Chicago, March 11—Very busy and very cold in Chicago. First, a talk with Mr. Alphonse Capone, in the Cook County jail. Marshal Harry W. Laubenheimer in his office in the Federal Building signs the permit for a visit "unaccompanied."

David Moneypenny, warden, admits you to the prison, far over on the West Side, in the Bohemian neighborhood. Mayor Cermak, who is a Bohemian, had the courthouse and jail located there, to "help real estate."

John Dohmann, assistant warden, takes you up five flights in an elevator, of which he has the key, and you land in front of the heavy door of iron bars that admits you to "Section D. 3." Capone's room is behind that door and before it sits a United States deputy marshal, night and day, three deputies on eight-hour shifts. No other prisoner is thus honored.

Dohmann turns a heavy double key in the lock, and there sits Alphonse Capone, playing cards at a table to pass the time. It's a big room, several windows and sunlight, several beds. The jail is crowded. Fifteen hundred are packed into a building planned for twelve hundred and forty.

A dozen might be in Capone's room, but there is only one, a small, pleasant faced youth, put there to help pass the time with handball, cards, etc. Why not a dozen? Because Capone, with a dozen to talk to, might "think of something."

Capone's greeting was: "How are you? Is there any news?" He meant news about the Lindbergh baby.

For an hour the talk was of little else except that child and on that subject. What Capone said will be given as nearly as possible in his own words.

"I don't want any favors if I am able to do anything for that baby. IF THEY WILL LET ME OUT OF HERE I WILL GIVE ANY BOND THEY REQUIRE IF THEY ARE INTERESTED IN THE CHILD. I will spend every hour of the night and day with Thomas Callaghan, head of the United States secret service guard. The government knows that it can trust him. I think. And I will send my young brother to stay here in the jail cell if I come back. You don't suppose anybody would suggest that I would double-cross my own brother and leave him here if I could get away from Callaghan?"

"What could I do if I were out? Let them give me a chance to show what I could do. I have a good many friends, and anybody that knows anything would know that he could trust me. There isn't a mob that wouldn't trust me to pay that money if the relations of the kidnaped child wanted me to pay it. I'd

40 ROUTED BY BLAZE IN WEST END

Twelve Children Are Carried to Safety as Flames Sweep Leverett St. Block

About 40 persons, including nearly a score of children, were driven to the street, the majority clad in nightclothing, as flames and smoke swept a four-story apartment building at 15 Leverett st., West End, early today.

The blaze, according to police and fire officials, apparently started in the basement in a bakery operated by Joseph Rinaldi.

The flames were confined to the basement but clouds of smoke rolled through the building, filling the hallways and stairways and making escape difficult.

A dozen small children were carried to the street by firemen and Lieut. Thomas Connolly and Patrolmen William Mulvey and Thomas Cudehy of the Joy st. station.

The officers rushed into the building to help rouse the tenants, and were able to carry out several small children before the building was cleared.

The loss was estimated at $1500, mostly to the bakery.

Priest Grabs Looter of Poor Box

How Rev. Edward J. McLaughlin, curate of St. Mary's Catholic Church, Randolph, pursued wrestled with and made prisoner of a man who had stolen $10 from the shrine box in the church was revealed today in Quincy court.

Harry Nixon, 41, of Baltimore, was found guilty and sentenced to three months in the House of Correction.

Entering the church last night, Fr. McLaughlin saw Nixon there and upon seeing that he was not one of the parishioners, talked with him. Nixon edged away and aroused the priest's suspicions.

Fr. McLaughlin recalled the $10 theft, which occurred on Feb. 28, and questioned the stranger, who suddenl ran for the door. The priest pursued him, caught him 100 yards from the churche and after a struggle held him while a passerby called police.

Tools found on the man fitted marks made on the shrine box when it was forced open, according to Chief Patrick McDonnell.

REFEREE FINDS CLUB IS 'BROKE'

A recommendation to adjudge judge the Dover Country Club bankrupt was filed in federal court today by Charles Ryan, referee, in an involuntary bankruptcy hearing against the club.

The club, one time patronized by many wealthy Bostonians, has total assets of $46,005 and liabilities of $115,073, Ryan reported.

It was incorporated July 14, 1927, and covered 42 acres in the town of Dover.

Missing Sailor Is Believed Drowned

Searsport, Me., March 11 (AP)—The disappearance ten days ago of Samuel J. Ware, 29, of Wolf City, Tex., a seaman on the Mallory line steamer Mallemak, was reported today by Sheriff Frank H. Cooper.

Cooper said the man was last seen late at night while he was on "a party" with two other members of the crew of the vessel. Investigation led Cooper to believe that the man fell into the water when he tried to board the boat.

CAPONE PLEA NEW TURN IN HUNT

King of Gangsters is "Pretty Sure" of Getting Child if Let Out to Try

Hopewell, March 11—Out of a welter of false rumors, stories of new demands for $75,000 ransom, an reports that, in fact, no direct contact has been had with the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby, and that police and private efforts have failed completely, one startling development stood out today. The hunt has turned definitely to the underworld, with the master gangster, Al Capone, taking the spotlight away from the minor gang leaders already enlisted in the futile search.

From his cell, facing an 11-year sentence, Capone in an interview with Arthur Brisbane, famous writer, begged to be released under any bond or condition whatsoever, with his brother in his cell as a hostage, until he ran down leads he felt "pretty sure" would restore the child to his mother's arms and relieve the nation of its anxiety.

BULLETIN

Detroit, March 11 (AP)—The Detroit News in a dispatch from Clare, Mich., today quotes Isadore Leibowitz (identified by the news paper as New York attorney for Salvatore Spitale and Irving Bitz) as stating that, according to information received by him, the child is safe. The news quotes Leibowitz as saying the ransom would be much more than $50,000 heretofore mentioned. He also said, according to the dispatch, that he did not know what promise Spitale and Bitz made to the Lindberghs, but he was certain they would keep it. Leibowitz, the News said, was in Cuba in connection with the business of New York firms interested in Michigan oil properties.

New York, March 11 (INS)—Salvatore Spitale and Irving Bitz, underworld chiefs named by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to negotiate for the return of his kidnaped baby, have important information which will cause them to leave shortly for Detroit, it was stated by Attorney Abraham Kesselman, their counsel, when the two appeared in Federal Court Brooklyn, today, on a liquor charge.

"I cannot discuss the nature of this information, but it is a good lead," said Kesselman.

CAPONE OFFERS TO POST ANY SUM ASKED FOR LIBERTY

"THEN LET JUSTICE GO ON WITH HER RACKET," HE SAYS

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

there isn't anybody that would think I would tell where I got the child, or how I got it or who had it.

"Can I find it? How do I know? He pointed to a big pile of letters on his table, all addressed to him, every one opened before he got it.

"They don't do that for everybody, but they do it for me. You can't expect anybody to send a letter to me here. But if I were out, it wouldn't take long for anybody that has information to get at me. I am easy to find and to recognize.

"All that I can promise is that I would do my best. I would put up a money bond as big as I could raise for my return.

"I would put my young brother here in my place to wait here until I come back. I would do my best. I would soon know whether the child is in the possession of any regular mob that I can connect with or in the possession of any individual working his own racket, that would have sense enough to know that he could trust me, and know that it might not be a bad idea to do me a good turn.

"I want to repeat, I don't ask any favors, don't want any gratitude or anything else in case I can be of any use. I can imagine how Col. Lindbergh feels."

"It would be hard for anybody, any man that found the man that stole that baby, not to take a crack at him. But I would give my word through my different angles, as I give it now, and nobody would be afraid to trust me. If it turned out that I couldn't be of any use, and of course that is likely enough, then I would come back here, take my brother's place, and let justice go on with her racket."

AL TELLS HOW HE WOULD WORK

Capone went into some detail as to how he would proceed if he were at liberty, with nobody to prevent his getting in touch with his acquaintances and associates all over the country. Having a secret service man with him watching him, Capone said, would not interfere with him.

"And," said he, "it would make those responsible feel better in case they feared I wouldn't come back to take the bond down and to set my brother free. Callaghan wouldn't worry. He knows he can trust me if I gave him my word."

Capone went into some detail, but not for publication, as to the methods he would adopt to get information of the baby's whereabouts and knowledge of those that are withholding it from its mother.

Harry Read, city editor of THE CHICAGO AMERICAN and a real newspaper man, who accompanied the writer to the jail, narrated instances in Capone's career indicating that the wise members of any "mob" would oblige Capone if they could, might advance and not ignore any reasonable argument or request that he might advance.

As this is written, the Associated Press calls up to say, "One of our Associated Press men learned that you went to see Capone this afternoon. Would you mind saying whether you went there as an emissary of the Lindbergh family, or at the request of anybody connected with the family?"

DECISION UP TO GOVERNMENT

The answer was "no. I went there as a newspaper man. I haven't seen Col. Lindbergh or any member of his family since the baby was kidnaped, and haven't been in communication with anybody representing him. The Government of the United States seems to think Alphonse Capone a powerful man in certain circles. I share that belief, and thought it desirable to learn what, if anything, Capone could suggest."

It is possible that Alphonse Capone could do that which could not be done by others of whom many with excellent intentions have appeared to run around in circles, not going anywhere in particular.

Whether it would be possible to give Capone a chance to try, putting up a large sum in the way of a bond, putting his brother in his prison cell as a guarantee of his return, and taking a secret service man with him, the government must decide.

It would depend probably on Col. Lindbergh's desire, and whether it would be actually in the power of the judge that sent Capone to prison, or of President Hoover himself to make the experiment possible.

This writer believes that whether he succeeded or failed, Capone would return.

"Since you spent an hour with Alphonse Capone, tell us what he looks like."

He is of the average height, enormously broad shouldered. His head is of the brachycephalic type, almost round, very wide, from ear to ear. He wore a suit of plain dark blue flannel, with a tan colored shirt, collar attached, no tie. His hands are big and powerful, the muscles in his upper arm bulge through the soft flannel. His feet are small, shoes pointed and ornamented with many holes pierced in the leather.

CAPONE IN CELL—TIGER IN TRAP

His eyebrows heavy and black meet below his forehead. The eyes beneath them you would not soon forget. They are small, round, a greenish gray. He does not actually look big and he is not fat. When you ask him how much he weighs he replies: "two hundred and forty pounds, two ounces less than a horse," and laughs.

You do not see the real Capone in a prison cell. As well expect to see a real tiger after it is caught in a trap.

But, caught, Capone keeps his wits about him and is constantly thinking.

Harry Read, who knows him as well as anybody outside his organization, says Capone has a violent temper "in a rage, he raves and storms, his eyes blaze. But he never does anything while he is angry. He sits down until he is calm, then he gives his orders."

Capone does not make any secret of his business. Says he:

"I handle beer, and beer never did anybody any harm. Everybody is a bootlegger nowadays, either selling it or buying it. The man that buys it violates the law, as much as the man that sells it and has not as good an excuse."

Capone also feels that the government, insisting on sharing the bootlegger's profits in the way of income tax, is something of a law breaker on its own account. "It is as though the government demanded its percentage of a bank burglar's haul."

Capone is convinced that he is a young man who has worked his way upward against odds and has been harshly treated.

"I cut leather at the Bush Terminal for four years. I worked in bowling alleys, I am only 33 years old, and they tie me up with things that happened twenty-five years ago, talking about mobs that I never heard of.

TREATED HARSHLY, HE BELIEVES

"When I came to Chicago eleven years ago I only had $40 in my pocket. I went into a business that was open and didn't do anybody any harm. They talk about the unemployed. I have given work to the unemployed. At least 300 young men, thanks to me, are getting from $150 to $200 a week, and are making it in the harmless beer racket, which is better than their jobs before.

"I have given work that has taken many a man out of the holdup and bank robbery business and others worse.

"Suppose they put me out of business permanently, and all my men lose their jobs. They are making a good living now, they have families and little houses. They couldn't get $30 a week in any legitimate racket now. What do you think they would do? Go on the streets and beg? No."

Capone leaves those interested to draw their own conclusions as to what men engaged in the beer racket would do if they suddenly found themselves among the unemployed. He feels that he was "double-crossed" by the law.

There is a solid foundation for his statement that he had an understanding that if he would plead guilty and pay a certain amount of income tax to the government, he would be sentenced to jail for two years and a half.

AGREEMENT WITH LAW BROKEN

That agreement was broken. The judge who sentenced him to 11 years in prison was not a party to it. Capone thinks he was treated harshly when the judge made the sentence 10 years in the federal prison and then one year in the county jail, a sentence that, according to Capone, will deprive him of any commutation for good behavior.

The treatment that he has received puzzles Capone.

"I have always been a Republican, and my young men are 100 per cent Republicans. But we don't ask for any profit out of politics. That isn't our racket. I don't see why they should crucify me."

Only 33 years old, Capone speaks of "my young men."

You are old at 30 in his line, and fortunate if you live so long.

Fortunately for those seeking the Lindbergh baby, Capone is of the opinion that "that child was not taken by an organized mob. It isn't the work of any organization. There are lots of little fellows working for themselves. They have got no money and are as foolish as any kid.

"To kidnap that child was as foolish as it would have been to try to kidnap President Hoover. With the organization and the various angles with which I am familiar, I think I have a chance to get in touch with the kidnapers, whoever they are. I would see that they got their money, if the authorities wanted me to. There isn't a man in America that would not like to return that child to its folks, whatever it cost him."

WHISKEY NOT IN HIS LINE

The other "bootleggers" that buy what the bootleggers sell may be interested in Capone's statement:

"I am in the beer business. If I am guilty those that buy are guilty. I don't have much to do with whiskey. Chicago drinks beer. New York drinks whiskey. In Chicago we do not sell 2 per cent of the whiskey that they sell in New York. Yes, of course, selling whiskey is easier and more profitable. There is more money in a small package."

Capone smiled sorrowfully, a rather pleasant smile, as he described the injustice to which he has been subjected. They won't let him out on bail, although others convicted of income tax cases are set free on bail until the highest court has passed on their appeal. They made him pay expenses of the trial, although they don't do that with others. That cost him $50,000.

The government, he says, wants him to pay $336,000 in income tax.

"I don't know," said he, "where they get those figures, unless it is out of the moon. How do they know anything about my income since they never proved that I ever received a dollar? They may have been able to prove that I spent some money, but that didn't prove that I have any income. What I have might have been given to me by admiring friends. And the government doesn't tax gifts."

Capone assures you that it was his intention to live up to the agreement that he had, pay what the government wanted.

Capone thinks it strange that the government should share profits in a business that they call criminal.

"It was my intention," said Capone, "to serve my two and a half years, without a murmur, and get into some legitimate racket when I got out of jail. But if I wanted to get into a legitimate racket, I suppose they wouldn't let me. When I get through with this I am going into the surety business. In fact, I am in it now."

Citizens of Chicago interested in Capone's appearance of unusual power, should go to the Art Museum, on Michigan boulevard, and look at the equestrian statue of Colleoni by Verrocchio, finest equestrian statue in the world.

Colleoni, greatest of Italy's condotieri, had powerful shoulders like Capone's, with a neck and head like his. If Colleoni and Capone had changed places in history, Capone might be riding a bronze horse in Venice today and Colleoni, who fought for and against this city and that, and finally left his great fortune to Venice, might be sitting now in the jail on the West Side.

More about that jail another day, perhaps, about the desperate men that are divided up among its 32 sections, some under sentence of death, some waiting for sentence; about miserable women waiting patiently for an opportunity to speak to those in jail, old men that have come to see their sons, young men and women bringing a little money to a father or mother.

The visitors' cage would interest you, separating the criminal from his visiting friends by a plate of bullet-proof glass. You can talk and even whisper to the prisoner around the edge of the glass. But you can't hand him poison, a gun or a saw.

Your magazine writer, or some dramatist writing an unreal play about newspapers, could get material from Francis W. MacNamara, physician, who looks after prisoners.

Much influenza in the prison now, one case of elephantiasis. And many cases of gunshot wounds, naturally boys 16 and 17 years old, engaged in "stick-ups" and shot by policemen.

A prominent Chicago hotel man tells you that three more speakeasies have just been opened close to his big hotel, for the convenience of hotel guests, making competition more keen.

We have a civilization built up under prohibition, a civilization of bootlegging, gangster rule, kidnaping, gigantic financing of crime and rackets of a thousand kinds.

No wonder Capone says "if I am a bootlegger, so are they all."

LINDY READY TO ASK AID OF CAPONE IN SEARCH

his cell sutdying and pondering the unsolved mystery until the New York pair and the entire police force of America failed to produce. Then he issues his new appeal. The master gangster of his generation, the king of underworld kings, offers his services in the belief, apparently, that if the underworld is to take charge of the case the king gangster should be in charge.

Capone's offer his stirred the nation. Washington is considering it. Police officials here are cognisant of it, but maintain their usual attitude of mystery and secrecy.

Two questions regarding the Capone offer were put to the police in formal fashion today as follows:

ON CAPONE'S PLEA

Q.—Al Capone appealed to the Federal Government to release him on bond so he can help in the search for the baby. Will you state whether the New Jersey police have been approached? Do they approve? Have they any objections? Does Col. Lindbergh know of this? Will he comment? Do police think Capone could help?

A.—The matter of the release of "Al" Capone has not been taken up by police conducting the investigation and this is entirely in the hands of the Federal Government. The police are not contemplating making any such request.

Q.—Washington officials say that the enlistment of "Al" Capone's aid in negotiations with the kidnapers could be effected if Col. Lindbergh, Governor Moore or somebody of equal responsibility here requested. He would be admitted to bail on authority of the Attorney-General's office. Is any such move contemplated?

A.—See answer to question preceding.

REQUEST WILL GET RELEASE

The belief prevails here that a request from Col. Lindbergh or any of his recognized aids, or from the State police, will see Capone out of his cell and on the trail.

When George E. Q. Johnson, federal attorney in Chicago, was asked what he thought of freeing Capone temporarily to give him a chance to help on the Lindbergh case, he said:

"I know of no formal move now afoot to free Capone on bond. I don't want to say what my reaction would be to such a move until it is made."

The only news today in the Lindbergh home was no news. As matters stand today, the case, so far as the public knows, could be entered in the books as a closed and unsolved mystery. State police officials, stung by obvious criticism of their lack of progress in the case in last night's questions submitted by the army of reporters here, peremptorily shut down answering questions any longer. The public is therefore shut out. The national anxiety will be ignored except for an official bulletin twice in each 24 hours,—once at 10 a. m. and again at 11 p. m.

The questions which precipitated the police ban on news sought to clear up the many contradictions and absurdities in previous police answers to vital queries. These answers have become farcical in what they did not answer or clear up.

MANY LEADS, NO BABY.

The nine days of investigation have been filled with hundreds of leads that have sent investigators into New England, Pennsylvania and New York. So far as is known, however, the vital facts remain brief:

The baby has not been found.

Two men with gang influence—Spitale and Bitz—whom Col. Lindbergh authorized last week to act as his agents in dealing with the kidnapers (should they hesitate to deal with him directly) were called into federal court in Brooklyn today to answer a charge of prohibition law violation.

A fourth figure with a gangland background — Morris Rosner — has called at the Lindbergh home during the past few days, according to Edward P. Mulrooney, commissioner of New York police. Rosner, the commissioner said, is out on bail pending trial on a grand larceny charge growing out of the sale of stocks.

It was Rosner, according to some sources of information, who caused Spitale and Bitz to be named as possible go-betweens, in the belief that professional criminals would not hesitate to deal with them, regarding both Spitale and Bitz as "square shooters."

LINDBERGH READY

Col. Lindbergh, who paid no attention to the first Capone offer, grasped at the second eagerly today, according to reliable information, and he and Col. Breckenridge held a long conference in the matter.

The grief-stricken aviator was impressed by the fact that the second offer was made through Arthur Brisbane and that the noted editor included in his story of the Capone visit, the succinct observation:

All that is needed for the Capone release is the last of the plan by a man who admittedly is the most powerful figure in the underworld, is the formal request by the aviator-father.

It was reported here that so certain are officials in Chicago that the request will come from Col. Lindbergh in a few hours, that all preparations have been made for bonds to free Capone.

All that is required is an order from the attorney general at Washington to admit "Scareface" Al to bail, and he would walk out into the free air within an hour, ready to start the silent wheels of his great underworld organization moving.

CAPONE "PRETTY SURE"

President Hoover already has pledged the co-operation of all federal government agencies in the search for the Lindbergh baby.

In later interviews with the gangster, following his offer made through Arthur Brisbane, the Chicago racketeer declared that he is "pretty sure I can get the baby back."

Johnson Familiar With Lindy Home

Newark, N. J., March 11 (AP)—The Newark Evening News said today that "Red" Johnson was familiar with every room in the Hopewell home of the Lindberghs, that he visited the house in November, when it was under construction, again on New Year's Day and a third time three weeks before the kidnaping.

Each time, the News said, he was accompanied by Betty Gow and on the visit New Year's Day he was shown through every room in the house by the butler, Ollie Whentley.

The first "baby bonds" were sold in Chicago yesterday. Those hoarding money should investigate those bonds and INVEST in them. The bonds pay two per cent and the government will pay them in full at the end of a year. If you want your money you can get it back at any time on 60 days' notice. Any bank will get the bonds for you.

And remember this. IF THOSE BONDS WERE NOT GOOD, THE MONEY YOU HAVE HIDDEN AWAY WOULD NOT BE GOOD EITHER. Both get their value from Uncle Sam's promise to pay. It is a good promise.

charged under the respective names of James Martin and Morris Grossman, with smuggling liquor ashore after a gun battle July 26.

Through counsel, they declared that they had information concerning the stolen baby which would cause them to leave for Detroit as soon as the trial was over.

"I cannot discuss the nature of this lead," said Abraham Kessman, the attorney, "but they plan to go to Detroit as soon as possible."

TWO OTHER EVENTS

Outside the barrier of silence surrounding the estate without a baby on a New Jersey hillock only two other happenings of possible significance were recorded.

1—An employe of a detective agency spent most of the day with the Lindberghs. He was accompanied by a woman.

2—Two messages, which fitted into the present status of the mystery, appeared on successive days in a New York newspaper personal column.

At right angles to this was the equally positive source which declared that neither Colonel nor Mrs. Lindbergh, despite reports to the contrary, had ever received any communication from the kidnapers.

SEE CLUES IN ADS

The Sun said today that recurrent rumors that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is in communication with the kidnapers of his baby were apparently substantiated today" by the two cryptic 'public notices' published in a newspaper Tuesday and Wednesday and today.

The first notice, The Sun said, read:

"Letter received at new address. Will follow your instructions. I also received letter mailed to me March 4 and was ready since then. Please hurry on account of mother. Address me to the address you mention in your letter. Father."

Today's notice read:

"Money is ready.—Jafsie."

There was no official confirmation of these messages.

The Post said it had been reliably informed that "the Lindberghs have not yet heard from the kidnapers of their son," and that "neither Col. nor Mrs. Lindbergh believe a genuine communication from the abductors has been received."

The World-Telegram reported "signs of activity" in the underworld into which the flier has carried his fight to recover his child."

U. S. Ready to Free Capone if Lindy Needs His Help

Washington, March 11 (US)—If Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Col. Henry Breckinridge, his attorney; Gov. A. Harry Moore of New Jersey, or the head of the New Jersey state police ask for Al Capone's release on bond to allow him to search for the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, the request will probably be granted.

This was the reported attitude of the Department of Justice today following publication of an interview by Arthur Brisbane with the jailed gangster, in which Capone offered his services without hope of reward.

No recommendation for bail for Capone has been made by the attorney-general, it was stated, nor has any request come from Col. Lindbergh or the New Jersey authorities.

President Hoover has pledged the co-operation of all federal government agencies in the search for the infant. It is believed that if Col. Lindbergh should make a request seeking Capone's aid, bail for the "gang czar" would be arranged.

Capone Awaits Order to "Go Find Him"

Chicago, March 11 (INS)—Al Capone waited in his cell today for the outcome of his offer to search for the kidnaped baby.

In an interview with Arthur Brisbane, copyrighted by King Features Syndicate, Capone offered any amount of bond if the government would permit him to emerge from his cell long enough to negotiate for the release of the nation's most famous baby.

The offer startled legal and judicial circles here as the gang chief's high priced counsel thus far has been unable to secure his release on bond pending the outcome of an appeal from a sentence of 11 years for violation of the income tax laws.

Although Capone stated he was willing to be accompanied by a secret service guard during the entire time he would be seeking the Lindbergh baby, it was generally believed here that there was little possibility that he would be released.

The order would have to come from Washington and there would be no action there, it appeared, without a personal request from Col. Lindbergh. However, indications were that the Department of Justice would act favorably should Col. Lindbergh make the request.

New Britain, Ct., March 11 (AP)—Connecticut police, on the alert for the Lindbergh baby, sought a black sedan without registration plates which sped through this city at 1:35 a. m. today.

Anne on Same Floor When Kidnaping Was Discovered

SHE AND NURSE THOUGHT LINDY HAD THE BOY

By ROBERT J. CAVAGNARO.
Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press

Hopewell, N. J., March 11 (AP)—Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh was on the same floor as the nursery when the kidnaping of her baby was discovered a week ago last Tuesday, it was learned today, and the mother and nurse were not immediately alarmed, both thinking Col. Lindbergh must have taken the child downstairs.

All previous reports have indicated that Mrs. Lindbergh was downstairs with her husband and that Betty Gow, the nurse, found the crib empty and rushed down to the parents with the announcement of the kidnaping.

But it was authoritatively determined today that at 10 o'clock of that night Mrs. Lindbergh was in a bathroom on the second floor, where the nursery is situated, preparing to take a bath.

When Miss Gow, who had only been called to the Lindbergh estate that afternoon, despite previous announcements that she had spent the week-end with the baby, found the crib empty she went to the bathroom and asked if Mrs. Lindbergh had the child there with her.

THOUGHT LINDY HAD HIM

The mother said she did not have the baby, but even then no feeling of consternation was experienced by the two women, though Mrs. Lindbergh did immediately begin to dress.

"I guess the colonel must have taken him downstairs," Miss Gow is reported to have said, in effect, and she went down to ask the father.

When Miss Gow learned that the colonel did not have the baby however, she suddenly realized the seriousness of the situation and screamed that the baby had been stolen.

By that time Mrs. Lindbergh was in the nursery and Col. Lindbergh joined her there. After a hasty search of house and grounds the police were notified and the hunt began which was still in full swing today without any palpable results.

NOT THERE THAT DAY.

It has been repeatedly stated that Miss Gow did NOT leave the Lindbergh house on the day of the kidnaping or during the previous week-end. This was literally true, but it was only learned today that it was also misleading. MISS GOW DID NOT LEAVE THE LINDBERGH HOME DURING THAT PERIOD FOR THE VERY SIMPLE REASON THAT SHE WAS NOT THERE.

The Lindberghs had been accustomed to leave Miss Gow at the Morrow home in Englewood when they made their week-end trips to their estate here, and they followed this custom on this occasion. Tuesday, however, they decided to remain here instead of returning to Englewood as they had planned, because of the baby's cold.

And so they telephoned to the Morrow home and had Miss Gow come out. She arrived late in the afternoon.

Col. Lindbergh got home at 8:30, half an hour after the baby had been put to bed, and he and Mrs. Lindbergh at once had dinner. After dinner they sat in the living room for a little while and then Col. Lindbergh moved to his desk in theroom beneath the nursery and Mrs. Lindbergh went upstairs to take a bath before going to bed.

WIFE INVENTED KIDNAP TALE

Omaha, Neb., March 11 (AP)—Omaha newspapers said today that Mrs. Raymond Worth of Blair, Neb., former New York State school teacher, had told reporters at Blair that her story of having been kidnaped in New York city and held for ransom was false and that it had been manufactured by her to cover up losses suffered in the stock market.

Mrs. Worth told the reporters that she and her husband had lost money sent to her by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Meier, in an attempt to recoup their own fortunes on the market. When they lost, Mrs. Worth said she wired for money to proceed home on, and upon her arrival in Blair, told her parents she had used the money to pay a ransom to kidnapers.

Early yesterday she had told reporters her story of being kidnaped. There was no official investigation of it and there will be none, authorities at Blair said.

CONTACT WITH KIDNAPERS IS DOUBTFUL

Baby's Parents as Much Perplexed as the Rest of the World

By DOROTHY DUCAS.
(Copyright, 1932, by International News Service)

Hopewell, N. J., March 11 (INS)—The Lindberghs do not know whether or not they have been in touch with the kidnapers of their baby.

Hundreds of letters have come in, purporting to be from those who took little Charlie from his crib a week ago Tuesday night. Clues have been gathered, checked, acted upon. But the Lindberghs today are as perplexed as you and I.

This was revealed to International News Service today by an intimate friend of the Morrow family.

"Do you think the kidnapers have really been heard from?" this friend was asked.

"I'm afraid not," was the response.

"Do the Lindberghs believe they have?"

"No."

NO FALSE OPTIMISM

That is the situation—as viewed by some one who has been in the Morrow home in Englewood every day, who has spoken by telephone with the Hopewell mansion.

But you find no false optimism in the Lindbergh house on Sourland Mountain. There the long fruitless period since the disappearance of the child is considered serious. There no one talks glibly of the baby's return to his nursery in 10 or 20 or even 32 hours.

Much as the parents of the Lindbergh baby would like to believe their son will be back at any time, they will not be misled by the turn of events.

MANY CRANK "CLUES"

A baby vanished beyond the reach of police trailing is a baby very far indeed from his mother's arms, they think.

The police have admitted, in answer to reporters' questions, that THERE IS NO PROOF ANY LETTER HAS BEEN RECEIVED from the kidnapers since the original note. With cranks all over the world sending in false clues, it is a difficult and tedious task to sort out the keen from probable leads.

Nothing, except the steadfast spirit of Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh, points to the recovery of the child.

CHEERS FOR MEN VALERA FREED

Dublin, Irish Free State, March 11 (AP)—Hundreds of Irishmen gathered today at the hotels to cheer for political prisoners released yesterday as one of the first new De Valera demonstrations.

"Up the rebels!" a cry not heard since 1921, rang through the streets again and platoons of the Irish Republican Army paraded without interference by the police.

For the first time since the enactment of the recent emergency laws the newspaper, The Republic, appeared in its old form. Frank Ryan, the editor, was one of those released yesterday.

Baby, 2, Talks Too Much With Words Worth $1 Each

Evanston, Ill., March 11 (AP)—Junior Smith, at two and a half years, knows a lot of words.

So large is his vocabulary his father, S. H. Smith, had to declare a verbal "moratorium" to keep from paying for Junior's words at the rate of $1 each.

Judge Foter was telling Mr. and Mrs. Smith to compose their differences when Junior spoke up.

"Dry up," he said, among other things.

"Sir and madame," said the judge, "one more peep out, of that lad and I'll fine you each $5."

This figured at a dollar a word, so Junior was rushed out of the judge's range of hearing. Then the Smiths made up.

3250 GET JOBS IN CALIFORNIA

New York, March 11 (AP)—Organizations co-operating in a campaign to lessen unemployment by 1,000,000 jobs reported today that State highway maintenance work in California has utilized the services of 3250 men.

This employment, it was said, was the result of activities of the American Legion in California.

Opening of the New England regional office in the Hotel Statler, Boston, was announced at national headquarters. This office will be in charge of Irvin J. Loucraft. Col. Eben S. Draper is chairman of the Massachusetts State campaign.

"In Elizabeth, N. J., all town organizations paraded today to signalize participation of civic organizations in the drive," the statement said. "The parade marshalled all organized forces of the city.

"Reports of money pledges for wages came to national headquarters from three towns in different parts of the country. Wheeling, W. Va., pledged $278,839; $20,000 was pledged in Brattleboro, Vt., and $3500 in Norwood, Pa.

"The Ford Motor Co.'s Cleveland branch hired 500 additional workers. The Pacific Portland Cement Co. has put 138 men on permanently in Redwood City, Cal. Permanent positions were also found in Tuscaloosa, Ala., and Dedham, Mass."

Mayor Arthur W. Perkins of Rutland, Vt., pledged $900 to pay the wages of labor in improving residential property, and named a proclamation asking for the aid of all elements in the town in this drive.

His Trouble Is 'Too Much Bridesmaid,' So He Sues Wife

"Too much bridesmaid" was the complaint of Gordon Thompson of Commonwealth ave., Newton, in Middlesex probate court today, where he sought a divorce from Frances, whom he married in 1928.

"I couldn't get rid of the bridesmaid," he said. "My wife insisted we stay at the same hotel on our wedding night. After our honeymoon, she came to stay at our house. We separated 10 weeks after our marriage."

Thompson also testified he lost 22 pounds in those ten weeks, and that at the parting, his wife and her bridesmaid took all his belongings, including an automobile, which police got back for him. Judge Beane took the case under consideration.

ALCORN AT ODDS OVER JOHNSON

By JAMES J. SMITH
Copyright, 1932, by Boston Evening American

Hartford, Ct., March 11—Failure of the New Jersey authorities to examine properly certain Hopewell persons is one of the reasons for delay in solving the Lindbergh kidnaping mystery, according to a prominent lawyer of this city who has examined the signed statement made by Henry "Red" Johnson to States Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn.

The assertion, made almost simultaneously with a remark by Alcorn that he was "not lying down on the job," gave impetus to the belief that the Connecticut prosecutor and those directing the probe are sharply at odds.

It was indicated several days ago that Alcorn was disappointed at the failure of New Jersey officials to develop certain angles which had their starting points in Johnson's statement.

That was the reason, it was learned today, for his expressed determination to carry on an independent investigation.

Alcorn's office at the County building has been kept open 24 hours every day since the sweetheart of Nursemaid Betty Gow left it for Newark, and Detective Edward Hickey is still officially assigned to the case.

Asked to comment on the progress of the case in New Jersey, Alcorn replied:

"I will not discuss what other officials are doing. For myself I will say there is some information given me by Johnson which is still being checked by my office.

"I am by no means through with certain phases of the case developed here and I should like to have it known that I am not lying down on the job."

The Hartford lawyer was in conference with Alcorn at his office last Sunday and spent several hours studying the Johnson testimony.

While inclined to give Johnson a clean bill of health, the lawyer professed amazement that no arrests had been seen as a result of the story told by the sailor.

PROBERS FIND AKRON IS O. K.

Washington, March 11 (AP)—The House naval committee agreed unanimously today that there now is no "poor workmanship or faulty material" in the airship Akron.

Without objection it approved a report by a special subcommittee, which said:

"The subcommittee finds if there was any poor workmanship or faulty material used in the construction of the Akron that the same was corrected before the ship was completed."

The subcommittee emphasized that "no direct testimony was presented by any person who had first hand information relative to the charges of sabotage, faulty material, poor construction and overweight, other than by representatives of the U. S. Navy."

"It was admitted by representatives of the Navy that the ship was overweight to the extent of 18,000 pounds or more, and that the Goodyear Zeppelin Corp. had been penalized $25,000, the amount called for in the contract."

ICE TUGS STEAM TO RESCUE 40 ON DREDGE

Sandusky, O., March 11 (AP)—Battling through dangerous ice floes and high waves on Lake Erie, two ice-breaking tugs steamed today to the rescue of the 193-foot U. S. government dredge Taylor with 40 men aboard.

The Taylor was ice-locked and possibly aground on Star Island reef near Put-In Bay, with no means of communication.

Coast guards were uncertain whether the big ship was in immediate danger. They said it appeared to have been lifted upward at the bow, as if the ice had forced it upon the reef.

In such event, the hull would be in danger of being broken. Coast guards yesterday were unable to get within two miles of the Taylor.

Windsor, Ont., March 11 (AP)—Relief was taken to the ice-bound freighter Fellowcraft in Lake Erie, off Pelee Island, today by an airplane sent out by the Nicholson Transit Company, owners of the vessel.

The plane dropped provisions to the 20 members of the crew who have been marooned aboard the vessel for two days.

Detroit, March 11 (AP)—The tug Buckmastead, with the barge Maldi in tow, was reported aground or ice-bound off Gaulker's Point, Lake St. Clair, today.

The vessels have been off the point since yesterday. Neither has displayed distress signals.

JOHNSON TELLS OF VISITS TO LINDY HOME

Newark, N. J., March 11 (INS)—Henry ("Red") Johnson, friend of Betty Gow, nurse of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, was familiar with the Lindbergh home near Hopewell and had visited it three times, each time with Miss Gow, it was disclosed today.

The highlights f his story as told to police are:

His first visit to the Lindbergh home was in November, while the house was under construction.

The second visit was on New Year's Day, and on the third visit a few weeks ago he was shown through the house by Ollie Whestley, the butler, and was taken to the second floor.

Johnson did not go in the nursery but he was in the room next door to it.

Johnson had been planning a trip to Hartford, Ct., for several days before the kidnaping, he said, and Miss Gow was familiar with his plans.

On Sunday he and Miss Gow went for an automobile ride from the Morrow home in Englewood, stopped for dinner at a roadhouse and returned to the Morrow home, where Miss Gow remained.

Monday evening Johnson met Miss Gow again. They went to the Morrow home and passed the evening playing cards with Johannsen Junge, Mrs. Junge and four other women—members of the Morrow household staff.

Johnson made an appointment to meet Miss Gow Tuesday night.

On Tuesday afternoon Johnson's landlady in his Englewood lodging house informed him Miss Gow had telephoned in the afternoon that she could not keep the appointment but had been called to Hopewell because of the Lindbergh baby had a slight cold.

Johnson went over to the Junge house in Englewood and obtained from Junge the telephone number of the Lindbergh home. He then went to the drug store and placed a call for Miss Gow, at about 8:30 p. m.

ASKS ABOUT BABY

Explaining that he waited until the night cut rates before calling he said that when Miss Gow answered the telephone she inquired:

"What's the big idea?"

And he asked: "How's the baby?"

Police asked Johnson why he asked about the baby and he replied:

"It was on account of the baby she couldn't meet me; naturally I'd ask about the baby."

Johnson then asked Miss Gow if she believed he should go to Hartford, as he had planned.

Miss Gow told him to go ahead, he said. He left the drug store, hunted u pthe Junges, took them for a ride, went to his room and to bed. He started for Hartford on Wednesday morning without knowing anything about the kidnaping.

JUNGE TELEPHONES

The day news of the kidnaping was published Junge went to Miss Elizabeth Morrow, explained to her that Johnson, because of his friendship with Miss Gow, might be brought under auspicion and asked to send to the Lindbergh home a message from Junge, outlining all of Johnson's movements on Tuesday night.

This was done.

Johnson still is being detained by the Newark police. It is now charged that he is in the United States illegally. He is to be turned over to the federal authorities and can be held indefinitely until the federal officers take him in charge.

Niece of Booth Dies in Poverty, Cats Her Only Companions

New York, March 11 (AP)—Mrs. Marie Booth Douglas, 75-year-old former actress who claimed relationship with Edwin Booth, was found dead in a cheap tenement.

Three cats, her only companions during the past six years, stood by her bedside. On the rare occasions when she grocried with others in the building she hinted at stage triumphs. She was the niece of the great actor, Edwin Booth, and John Wilkes Booth, his brother, she said.

Police found in her trunks, amid finery of another day, letters which seemed to substantiate her story. The actors' fund took charge of the body.

LINDY MYSTERY MAN U. S. AGENT?

Who is Morris Rosner, the man reported to be directing the underworld search for Baby Lindbergh?

Is he a federal undercover agent?

He is a man of much mystery. The New York Daily News, which says he moved into the Lindbergh home two days after the abduction and was responsible for the selection of Salvi Spitale and Irving Bitz as "go-betweens," describes him as a secret government agent, attached to the United States attorney's office in New York in 1922.

He is a young New Yorker who has only one record of arrest despite the influence he is said to have in underworld circles.

IN BOSTON RECORDS

This was on an indictment charging him with grand larceny in connection with a stock promotion said to have mulcted the public of $2,000,000. He is at liberty on bail pending trial.

The records of the Boston Better Business Bureau contain mention of Rosner in connection with that case, which developed from sale of stock in the National Land Value Refunding Co., formed to insure holders of undeveloped land against depreciation.

Among the records are notification of an injunction issued in May, 1931, against Rosner, Lincoln Beach and J. Maxwell Gordon, restraining them from selling the stock.

Rosner is described as a salesman of the company.

IS HE U. S. AGENT?

On file there is also a clipping from the Rural New Yorkers of October 24, 1931, which sets forth that:

"Morris Rosner, former director of the National Land Value Refunding Co., was arrested on a charge of grand larceny in a stock-selling scheme, in which the public is said to have lost more than $2,000,000. The affairs of the company have been under investigation for two years by federal and state authorities."

Was Rosner one of those federal authorities?

Certainly there is nothing in Rosner's public record to indicate his influence in the underworld or any other reason for selecting him to direct the Lindbergh family's private investigation.

VOUCHED FOR BY SENATOR.

The Daily News quotes United States Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma as saying:

"I can vouch for Rosner's integrity to the utmost. Every one concerned in anything he is doing can trust him to the limit. I have known him for a year under circumstances which makes me positive that he is extremely trustworthy. In fact, I would trust him with my life."

14 QUESTIONS SEEKING FULL FACTS IN CASE UNANSWERED

Trenton, March 11 (AP)—Fourteen questions submitted by reporters remained unanswered today when Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the State police investigating the Lindbergh baby kidnaping, announced that the daily questionnaires would be discontinued.

The State police head charged that the press had attempted to "dictate" to them and was "interfering" with police work.

Information hereafter will be issued in bulletin form twice daily—at 11 a. m. and 10 p. m. In the event that "anything definite develops" special bulletins will be issued.

The statement of Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf marked a climax in the official relations between the police and newspapermen.

REPORTERS PROTEST

Some reporters from New York newspapers have felt they were not receiving as accurate or detailed information as the international interest in the case warranted. It was this fact which precipitated the discontinuance of the questionnaires in the colonel's brief announcement this morning.

The final list of questions which went unanswered follows:

1. As being one of the three main possibilities explaining the kidnaping, and in view of many contradictory answers, we would like definite information as to the search conducted by state police in the immediate vicinity of the Lindbergh home. We consider these especially important in light of the possibility that the baby might have been abandoned at any hour since the kidnaping and might now be alive in some remote spot in the wilderness abandoned as the result of the fright of the kidnapers:

A. Please tell in detail what steps state police took to obtain bloodhounds before finding as previously announced that "none were available," inasmuch as we are given to understand by dog authorities that 100 or more good bloodhounds could have been made available at Hopewell within two hours after the kidnaping was reported.

B. Is it the opinion of state police authorities that bloodhounds would not be able to trace the footprints of the kidnapers within a few hours after the kidnaping?

C. In case the answer to these questions is the usual "no answer," we wish to point out that these matters do not concern the personal affairs of the Lindberghs and do not concern future police attempts to contact the kidnapers or recover the baby, but are merely to establish whether a thorough, humanitarian effort has been made to discover whether the baby might have been abandoned in the vicinity of the Lindbergh home. If the answer to previous questions is "No answer," please explain why such an answer was made.

2—It is our information that there are several thousand acres of wild and wooded land surrounding the Lindbergh home. A check-up made by some reporters Thursday indicated that some homes within a fairly short walking distance of the Lindbergh estate have not yet been visited by police. We have already been informed that the search of the area was not continuous, and that the National Guard was not called out because it was a "police matter." Again pointing out the possibility that the baby might have been abandoned in this area at any time since the kidnaping, we wish to know:

ASK ABOUT MILITIA

C.—Please name the days upon which the search was conducted, how many men engaged each day, how many acres searched each day.

D.—Do the state police authorities feel completely satisfied that the baby has not been abandoned in the area of the Lindbergh home, and, if so, how do they arrive at that conclusion. (Again call your attention to question 1 C).

If the state police have not engaged steadily enough men to properly make a thorough search of the thousands of acres of wooded land around the Lindbergh home, why has not some public announcement of that fact been made, so that militia or a posse could have been called on to assist, in order to save the baby's life in the event that it was abandoned in the woods by the kidnapers.

E. If the answer to any of the above is "no answer," or "not to our knowledge," kindly explain why.

3. It has been frequently reported that the word "gut," meaning "good," appeared in the original ransom note. In view of this, or if the State police do not wish to commit themselves as to the existence of a ransom note, in view of any matter they have investigated or learned, have they paid any special attention to an investigation covering persons of German nextraction in the nearby community? Reporters who questioned people in the vicinity Thursday talked to some persons of German extraction who had not been questioned by State police. If you do not care to make a direct answer to this question, have you any other comment to make?

4—If the answer to the previous questions is "No answer" or "We have no knowledge of this," or something similar, will you kindly explain why the question cannot be answered?

5—There is some misunderstanding as to Johnson's nationality. Can you settle this point if you have the information, giving dates of immigration, birth, etc.?

6—In answer to a previous question you told us Betty Gow had not been out of the Lindbergh home at any time on the week-end prior to the kidnaping. It is our understanding that Betty Gow and Henry Johnson, according to statements of Johnson, had "dates" together on Sunday and Monday nights. Will you kindly clear up this seeming discrepancy?

7—Will you please give us a definite answer as to whether Col. Lindbergh has communicated or attempted to communicate with the kidnapers by newspaper advertisement, letter, telephone, or by any other means, or whether he has received any message by letter, telephone, telegraph, or by newspaper advertisement or by any other means which he believes to have come from the kidnapers? If the answer to this is the usual "No answer," will you kindly explain why the question is not answered?

QUESTION "PROGRESS"

8—Previous answer said that state police have no knowledge that Morris Rosner has a record in New York. Can you tell us just what his connection is in the present case, whether he is any way associated with Frank Aranow, and whether he has been or has claimed to be in touch with the kidnapers? Also how long has Col. Breckinridge known Mr. Rosner?

9—Is Harry Fleischer, Purple gangster, fugitive from Detroit Collingswood axe, massacre, being sought by the police for questioning in connection with the kidnaping? Is any Detroit gangster being sought?

10—Was Betty Gow at the Lindbergh home on the night of February 22. If not, where was she?

11. Tuesday night you reported "progress" in the investigation. Last night you said progress was "continuing". Would you say now there has been "further progress."

12. Do the facts on hand indicate the case is nearing a solution?

13. In order to set aside speculation caused by conflicting reports can you tell us without disclosing any vital detail, whether any communication has been received, of which the authenticity is unquestioned, indicating the baby is alive? If the answer is "No answer" will you please state why?

14. One reporter who previously requested an opportunity to communicate special information was told to confer with Lieut. Coughlin. His editors instruct him to say that they will communicate the matter to local authorities in their vicinity unless the reporter is given an opportunity to confer with supervising authority in the investigation.

The decision of Col. Schwarzkopf to discontinue replying to the questionnaire which has been submitted to the police at regular intervals in writing, was announced in the following statement:

"The questionnaire that has just been forwarded to me is so involved and commentary that it would require several hours and considerable discussion to answer it. The answering of these questionnaires has taken a great deal of our time which really belongs to the advancement of the work.

"The police have the work and the case is their uppermost responsibility and this must receive foremost consideration. We regret the attempt that has been made to dictate to the police and the disregard that is shown in our earnest effort to co-operate with the press.

"The time required to answer these questionnaires is interfering with our work and therefore we will discontinue to answer questionnaires. In place thereof two bulletins will be issued from Hopewell, one at 11 a. m. and one at 10 p. m. daily.

"In addition, you have our assurance that the moment anything definite develops, we will issue a bulletin immediately so that you may have prompt and authoritative information."

Discontinuance of the questionnaire leaves the press without any official source of information except the twice-a-day bulletins which Col. Schwarzkopf's statement promised.

At the outset Col. Lindbergh announced that all official information concerning the progress of the search would have to come from state police headquarters.

DECREASE OF 39 MILLION MORE IN HOARDING

Washington, March 11 (AP)—How about these for signs of improvement?

Hoarding during the past week decreased $39,000,000.

National bank failures in the last three weeks were only two, lowest number for such a period in nearly two years.

The country's gold stocks increased $12,000,000 during the week.

The Treasury's latest issue of certificates ($900,000,000) was oversubscribed nearly four times in two days.

Loans to brokers and dealers reported by the Federal Reserve Board bounded up $57,000,000, reflecting increased stock market activity.

HOARDING DECREASES.

The reduction in total money in circulation since President Hoover called for a campaign against hoarding now amounts to a total of $87,000,000, bringing the total of currency and coin outstanding for all purposes to $5,344,000,000. The country's gold supply has gone to $4,362,000,000.

There was just $3,402,725,500 of capital clamoring to be taken in exchange for the Treasury's new issue of short term paper, the larger part of it offered for the one-year 3½ per cent certificates.

BONDS SELLING WELL.

This was taken, partly at least, as an indication of public confidence in government securities. The exact amount to be sold has not been announced.

At the same time Secretary Mills let it be known that the "baby bonds," special anti-hoarding weapon of the Treasury, are selling well. No total is in yet for they are being retailed by banks and returns are slow.

JAPS, CHINESE AT ODDS OVER LEAGUE RULE

Washington, March 11 (AP)—Three destroyers attached to the Asiatic fleet have been ordered to Manila as a result of the eased situation at Shanghai.

Shanghai, March 11 (AP)—Chinese authorities were adamant today in refusing to accept any peace settlement that did not include unconditional withdrawal of Japanese troops from the Shanghai area.

As a result, although both the Chinese and Japanese have accepted the resolution of the League of Nations adopted March 4 looking toward a settlement of hostilities here, no peace was in sight today.

A strong detachment of Chinese troops for several days has occupied the American Episcopal Church property buildings at Changshu, 30 miles north of Soochow, missionaries here learned today.

Another group of Chinese troops was reported occupying a church belonging to the same mission at Kunshan, on the Shanghai-Nanking railway, using the structure for a rice storehouse, and the weight of the grain caused the floor to collapse.

Mission authorities asked the United States consulate to request evacuation of both properties.

Washington, March 11 (AP)—Three destroyers attached to the Asiatic fleet have been ordered to Manila as a result of the eased situation at Shanghai.

The Navy Department announced today Admiral M. M. Taylor, commanding the fleet, had ordered the destroyers Borie, John D. Ford and Pear to sail.

Remaining at Shanghai are the cruiser Houston, which is Taylor's flagship, the tender Black Hawk, destroyers Paul Jones, Smith Thompson and Stewart, the mine sweeper Finch, and the transport Chaumont.

GIBBONS IN GREAT 'SCOOP'

GARNER GAINS SUPPORT IN NEBRASKA

By LOUIS SEIBOLD

Omaha, March 11—The progressive label flaunted by both political parties in Nebraska and other states in the grain belt isn't cutting any much of a figure in the presidential primary campaign.

One of Nebraska's two Progressive senators, Howell, is supporting President Hoover because he is a "progressive." Senator Norris, the other Progressive senator, is opposing Hoover because he is a "reactionary."

Many Democrats who call themselves progressive are supporting Gov. Roosevelt because of his "independence of Tammany Hall" which proves that he is a progressive. Other Democrats are also supporting Roosevelt on the ground that he has always been regular and an old pal of Al Smith.

Hoover will get the sixteen Republican delegates from Nebraska, although his name will not figure in the preferential primaries. Former Senator Joseph I. Franey of Maryland, radical and iconoclast, will walk away with the honors.

It seems to be the common impression that the 148,000 majority Hoover piled up over Smith four years ago will not only be wiped out next November but there will be enough left over to elect any Democratic candidate (except Al Smith) by from 30,000 up.

There will be three contenders for the 16 Democratic delegates to the nominating convention of that party—Roosevelt, Garner and Murray.

Speaker Garner, whose name has been entered in the Democratic primaries against the advice of Representative Rayburn, his volunteer manager, growing in popularity among Democratic voters in the cattle sections in the western and nothern parts of the State.

Mullen is in active charge of the Roosevelt interests. He thinks the New York Governor will get all of the delegates. H. P. North who has assumed charge of the Garner candidacy, is equally sure the able and colorful Texan will win at least two out of the five Congress districts.

If You're Smart, Dad, Ma Are Entitled to the Credit

Evanston, Ill., March 11 (AP)—Modern genius is hereditary, President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern University believes.

His conclusion was reached after a survey of the home life of 150 students who responded to his call for six prodigies to enroll next fall.

"In almost every instance," he said, "the applicant comes from a well-to-do family. Precocious children are not accidents. They are the product of heredity. Their parents were precocious."

AL SMITH SLATE IGNORES CURLEY AS DELEGATE

Roosevelt henchmen are completely frozen out.

Curley has been the center of a telegraphic controversy with Smith over the latter's permission given to Frank J. Donahue, State chairman, for use of his name in the Massachusetts primaries April 26.

DISTRICT SLATES DELAYED.

Because of a slight hitch in the makeup of the district delegation, the names of 30 men and women who will compose it will not be given out until later.

It was pointed out emphatically, however, by Chairman Donahue that "all will be loyal followers of Smith."

Each of the 12 delegates named today, or their alternates, will have half a vote each at the convention.

The two delegates from each of the 15 congressional districts will have a vote each, giving Massachusetts a total of 30 votes.

The makeup of today's list showed a deep study, in which sections and political considerations played a leading part.

In the alternate list the minority leaders of both branches of the Legislature were recognized with the naming of Senator Buckley and Representative Birmingham.

Much time, it was learned, was spent on the four congressmen and the appointment of the women members of the delegation.

The announcement of the slate will mean a bitter battle between Smith and Roosevelt forces here that will even reach the floor of the convention, political observers agreed today.

While no Roosevelt supporter would admit it, the feeling seemed to prevail that the New York Governor is ready to assent to the use of his name here in an effort to pick up as many delegates as possible.

HOOVER SLATE READY.

Already there is talk among the Smith forces of inducing him to stage a rally here before he primaries in spite of his disinclination to take an active part in furthering his candidacy.

In other circles there was talk of a move by the Roosevelt interests for an agreement in which they would pledge themselves to Smith for a certain number of ballots with the understanding that they could then turn to Roosevelt and get support from the balance.

In Republican circles, Louis K. Liggett, national committeeman, was in receipt of power of attorney today for the use of President Hoover's name in the Massachusetts primaries.

The Republican slate, it was learned, is practically completed and may be released tomorrow.

GARNER BOOM IN NEVADA

Reno, March 11 (USI)—Recognized Democratic leaders in Nevada, among them National Committeeman Samuel M. Pickett, expressed themselves as amazed today at the growing strength of the Garner-for-President movement in this State.

Former Gov. James G. Scrugham, of Nevada, and William S. Boyle, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, were among numerous other outstanding party figures to comment upon the fact and to pay tribute to the sterling qualities of the Texas Congressman.

Boyle, a dynamic figure in the party councils, and former district attorney of Storey county, declared himself in favor of an uninstructed delegation to the National Democratic Convention, so that the Nevada group might be free to vote for Garner, Roosevelt or whatever candidate best promised to lead the party to victory this year.

He joined with Pickett in denouncing what he termed a disposition upon the part of certain Nevada Democrats to enter into a "compromise" with Republican forces here, with the object of insuring a "hybrid" party control of certain federal offices, notably those of prohibition administrator and United States attorney.

League Adopts Plan for Chinese Peace

Geneva, March 11 (AP)—The League of Nations assembly formally launched its three-point program for peaceful settlement of the Sino-Japanese conflict today without opposition. Japan and China abstained from voting.

Japan abstained because she was unwilling to accept the principle that the assembly is competent to deal with the whole dispute, including its Manchurian phase. The Chinese delegate refrained from voting because he had not received instructions from his government.

FAMOUS KIDNAPING MYSTERIES

The Ranieri Case

By WIN BROOKS

(This is the ninth in a series of articles by Win Brooks, Boston Evening American staff writer, on famous kidnaping cases brought to mind by the Lindbergh baby abduction.)

When kidnapers sized Billy Ranieri, 10, in Chicago in 1928, they grabbed a little tiger by the tail.

They held on as long as they dared. Finally they had to let go and the tiger turned and clawed them.

In all Chicago, probably, kidnapers could not have made an unwiser choice of a child victim, for Billy was old enough to possess the assertive self-confidence of a boy and too young to know the meaning of fear that comes, sometimes, with a realization of the power of forces outside the law.

WITNESS SLAIN

Terrorists killed one state witness and intimidated others into silence, but Billy Ranieri, 10, calmly led police in an airplane to the farm where he had been held captive, coolly identified his abductors and told his story, unafraid, in court before a judge, jury and prosecuting officers who had been threatened with death.

Billy is the son of a well-to-do contractor, A. Frank Ranieri. He was returning home from school on September 6 and was within two blocks of his house when two men seized him, threw him into an auto and punched him in the eye when he called for help.

Three months later he still wore the discolored eye when he testified in court. He wore, also, a new long-pants suit in which he was vastly more interested than in the trial.

The day after Billy vanished his father received a note demanding $60,000 ransom.

Police got no co-operation from Ranieri for more than a week. He was afraid to deal with them. He entered into secret negotiations with the kidnapers while the law followed several blind trails.

He informed the kidnapers through a secret agent that he didn't have $60,000 and couldn't get it. They replied with this note.

"Would you know your own son's head if you saw it?"

POLICE ENTER CASE

A week after the abduction police applied pressure to Ranieri for information. He pleaded with them.

"Give me 24 hours alone," he said, "and I'll have my boy back. If you don't I'll never get him."

They gave him 24 hours more and Billy was still in the hands of his abductors. Ranieri capitulated and decided to co-operate with the law. He admitted that his ransom negotiations had been conducted through a man named Andrew Petitti as go-between. Petitti was seized.

He denied any knowledge of the kidnaping but could not explain how he happened to be the agent for the abductors. Police said he was a Mafia chieftain and jailed him pending developments.

Mafia haunts were raided by police squads. Traps were baited and set for the abductors. Nothing happened, but the demands for money ceased.

Billy's abductors began bargaining for money if the boy were released unharmed. This was considered unusual, because police had no promising leads except in Petitti. At once they suspected that the abductors feared Petitti would break down under questioning and reveal their identity and hiding place.

Petitti was grilled anew. He was surly, but finally confessed participation in other extortion plots although denying knowledge of the kidnaping.

TRIO INDICTED

Chicago's politico-criminal alliance was functioning under cover, seeking release of the boy with a virtual promise of immunity for the abductors. This promise was made without authorization. The Ranieri family had about abandoned hope, and the entire community in which they lived was numbed with fear.

"I want to go home. I've been kidnaped," he told the proprietor. "I want to see my mama."

He was allowed to see his mamma and then police got his story. He had been held captive at a farmhouse and had received good treatment, except for the punch in the eye. He thought the same two men who kidnaped him released him after driving him several miles from the farm.

He was shown rogues' gallery photos and identified two men. Police spread out from Joliet to locate the farm where he had been held. They failed.

So Billy went for his first plane ride in a police ship that circled the countryside about Joliet. The plane was flown at low altitude, at reduced speed, and Billy, peering over the side, spotted the farm. Twenty minutes later it was raided and Andrew Cappellano, a truck farmer, and his 18-year-old son, Tony, were under arrest.

Cappellano implicated Petitti but nobody else although it was apparent that a gang was involved in the crime. Cappellano, his son and Petitti were indicted for the kidnaping. Threats of death were received daily by officials connected with the prosecution.

The case went to trial in December. Three hundred men were called before 12 who would sit on the case were found. Two state witnesses had been heard when Ole Scully, a third, was shot dead in a restaurant by a gang of five men. The five escaped.

But Billy Ranieri wasn't afraid and his memory was good. He told his story in detail and identified Cappellano and his son. The prosecution, summing up, ignored Tony Cappellano entirely, but asked the death penalty for the two men. The jury found the youth not guilty and convicted Andrew Cappellano and Petitti, recommending 25 years' imprisonment each. They are serving it.

SEES A MILLION MORE ADDED TO JOBLESS

Washington, March 11 (AP)—A billion dollar cut in municipal expenditures for public works this year was forecast today by F. F. Schmitt of New York, editor of the Engineering News Record in endorsing the LaFollette bill for a $5,500,000,000 program of federal, state, county and municipal construction.

The curtailment, resulting from inability of cities to borrow money, he said, would add a million men to the nation's unemployed.

Schmitt advocated formation of a "semi-public corporation which would provide a market for municipal securities."

"The government could either purchase State or municipal bonds at reasonable rates of interest or guarantee them for sale to the public."

He referred to the efforts being made in Congress to balance the budget as a "craze, or rather obsession."

Improvement of water works as a part of the proposed construction program was advocated by Malcolm Pirnie, New York consulting civil engineer.

Representatives of 700,000 building trades workers advocated in a letter that funds be voted for $150,000,000 of public construction which has been authorized and allocated.

$1,000,000 TAX SEIZURES IN SAUGUS

Approximately $1,000,000 worth of property, or one fifteenth of the entire valuation of the community, was taken over by the town of Saugus during 1931 for non-payment of taxes, the report of the finance committee to the annual town meeting disclosed today.

The report, prepared for the town meeting next Wednesday, declares that the town government must be run more economically, and that the tax rate must be reduced $8 to $34.

"The situation is grave," says the report. "To make matters worse, it is conservatively estimated that the town will fail to collect $60,000 this year or another $1,500,000 worth of property."

The town, according to the report, has also abolished the practice of paying for home telephones of city officials and has cut from $150 to $100 the allowance granted certain officials for use of their cars.

Cambridge Man Gone Five Months

Rudy Given 'Raspberry' by Crowd Waiting for Show

Poor Rudy Vallee. If it isn't grapefruit in Boston, it's raspberries—except that the raspberries were taken back last night at the Opera House, while the grapefruit, those many months ago, lay where it struck in the Metropolitan Theatre.

It all came about because Rudy's radio contract has him on the air from 8 to 9 p. m. every Thursday and because last night was Thursday and the curtain of George White's "Scandals" was delayed until 9 o'clock.

By 8:30 the audience had started clapping for action, and then the booing began. Finally a man who failed to identify himself stepped out before the curtain and explained that the delay was due to Rudy's being at the broadcast studio.

"Go on without him," someone in the audience cried.

"We don't want him anyway," another voice said.

But—such is human nature—when the curtain finally had gone up and the show started, Rudy Vallee was received with acclaim and all was forgiven and forgotten.

BEACON HILL

—by—

Betty Alden

ALICE ELLSWORTH

Like a beautiful bouquet the Vincent Club ushers showered us with attention as we entered the Majestic, vending boutonnieres and programs. Beautiful Anne Sutton netted a pretty penny for the Vincent Hospital as she cajoled the dollars from the handsome swains as they escorted their lovely partners down the aisles. Luis Ordriozola, that most fascinating Spanish gentleman, changed his gardenia to orchid and from orchid to gardenia as Anne coaxed the hoarded coins from his generous pocket.

• • •

It was the fifth anniversary of the Vincent Show and it certainly was a prime show. Mrs. John C. Ellsworth came early to sit in the 1st row to see her lovely daughter Alice perform a ballet dance in a professional manner. It was one of the hits of the show.

• • •

Another interested spectator was Mrs. Frederick Winthrop and Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Ishyan greeted many friends as they went down the aisle.

• • •

The first act to receive long applause was the roller skating act of the Monsons sisters and was it a WOW? RKO will get them if they don't watch out.

• • •

Acrobatic Dance Is Future

CHARLOTTE LYMAN, 1 POST-DEB, SHOOK THE rafters with her acrobatic featherd dance and was she beautiful? In a pink chiffon buttercup gown, girded with blue, an azure ribbon tieing her dark curls she brought down the house as she kicked and swayed to Roy's dancing orchestra.

• • •

The outstanding original act was the mask feature with Miss Helen Homans wearing a cg-face, with two shorter girls as Mickey Mouse and Fido. It was a scream and extraordinarily well-done.

• • •

Drill Big Hit

AS EVER, THE DRILL WENT over with a bang, and the girls were awfully attractive in the uniforms of the Foreign Legion. Such precision—such form is seldom seen even at West Point.

• • •

IN THE MUSICAL END, Sally White and Linda Collens, Nancy Whitman, Jane Bancroft, Mr. John [illegible] Jr. and Master [illegible] were among those who [illegible] Well done, all.

• • •

WE HEARD THAT RUDY VALLEE and Hope Williams were in the front row yesterday afternoon and led the applause. Good Scout, Rudy. Even the men have fallen for him since the Scandals hit town.

• • •

Beautiful Bride

IN THE AUDIENCE WE HAD a chat with [illegible] and Mrs. W. C. [illegible] Wed. They brought back [illegible] Tapestry [illegible].

• • •

THE LUCKY PROGRAM WAS called and we did not win a trip to the West Indies. Well, who the heck would want to go with seas running a mile high?

• • •

WE WERE SO PLEASED to meet again Mrs. James Carter, 2d (she's [illegible] Lucy Glover) that we can't [illegible] wearing her Vincent Club [illegible] uniform was [illegible] with [illegible] sprays of [illegible].

Browns Attend

AS FAR AWAY AS SALEM came the crowd and we had a brief [illegible] with Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Brown who [illegible] on a first night.

• • •

THE MOTHERS, FATHERS, sisters and brothers, not to mention the boy friends, flocked to give the little girls a big hand at their annual show, one of the best ever staged since we can remember.

• • •

Plan Trip West

HEARD AT THE SHOW: Mrs. Channing Wells and her lovely daughter, Miss Elizabeth are leaving on Monday for the West. Dr. and Mrs. Trees will visit their son and heir, Mr. Cash. We who like pictures of a large and [illegible] figure will [illegible] Mrs. Wells when [illegible] that [illegible] are going to [illegible] Coast to New York. Mrs. [illegible] the popular Zayne Lamworth.

• • •

EVELYN AMES IS VISITING her sister in New York and we feel sure there is some particular boy friend over there who will be pleased to see the fair Evelyn.

• • •

Entertains

MRS. [illegible] PHILLIPS entertained [illegible] this week. [illegible] a few [illegible] their [illegible] be [illegible] the lovely Madelyn must be well pleased with the success of her debutante daughter this season.

• • •

MRS. JOSEPH WOODS OF West Cedar st. has returned from Philips House where [illegible] been quite ill for several weeks.

• • •

Evelyn Royce and Edith Wolcott are on their way South to Boca Grande for a few weeks. [illegible] about [illegible] It was [illegible] they were only [illegible] mid-year's were over.

Those interested in art are looking forward to the two drawing room talks by Mrs. William Dana Orcutt, to be given at the home of Mrs. Walter C. Baylies, 5 Commonwealth ave., next Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and on Tuesday evening at 9 o'clock. The first talk is entitled, "The Madonna in Art," and the subject for Tuesday evening is to be "Leonardo da Vinci; the Marvel of the High Renaissance."

Books—And a Number of Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

That most astute observer, Rebecca West, [illegible] has been the bane of writers and critics to praise unworthy books now and then, in hope of helping certain [illegible] too seriously any more. Exaggerated opinions in special letters to reviewers, are generally looked upon with suspicion. It is as though a bright blue special-delivery stamp were placed on every envelope, until the recipient gets so that he discounts the importance of the contents.

Miss West made the point that a [illegible] But the lady—of course, it was a [illegible] who offered to steer—was wrong when she insinuated that some special consideration was necessary for this, or any other [illegible] instead of names. That might bring about a leveling process which would prove most salutary for all concerned—publishers, authors and reviewers alike.

One [illegible] come from Oshkosh as from New York, and there is no telling when a new O. Henry may appear, without introduction of any kind, at an editor's desk. And if a mediocre story were printed, with a blurb, in a popular magazine, and readers found, upon perusing it, that it did not measure up to the editor's enthusiastic judgment, innumerable subscribers would be lost [illegible] manuscripts because [illegible] familiarity with their various styles even with a certain acquaintance with their various typewriters and handwriting.

The identity of a few eluded me; but some of these afterward turned out to be absolutely new writers, many of whom made good afterward. One of the latter was Earl Derr Biggers. Which goes to prove I think that it is not difficult to [illegible] even a [illegible]

TRUE SHOCK IN NEWS FAR RARER THAN SUPPOSED

By GILBERT SELDES

ALMOST ALL THE CABLES reporting the death of Aristide Briand used a form of expression which has become common for the death of any well-known man—something like "the news of his passing spread rapidly and profoundly shocked all of Paris." I mean no disrespect to the dead in this or any other instance when I say that my first response to these phrases is a malicious doubt. The death of a great leader, in the fullness of his years and after many illnesses, does not create a universal shock. It may produce melancholy or regret; I am afraid that often it touches people a little less than the loss of a baseball game by their favorite team. Shock is a physical event, and for our minds to be affected an event must be the unexpected and violent collision of things which have no relation to one another. Death, being the natural conclusion of life and, according to Freud, very nearly the goal and purpose of life, is not shocking.

GILBERT SELDES

Beyond Measure

I think of this, of course, because in the week preceding Briand's death the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby did create a universal shock. Here was the unexpected and violent meeting of things which should have no connection; the peace and dignity of the Lindberghs' private family life and the cruelty and lawlessness of the kidnapers. I think that the degree of shock cannot yet be measured; we only know, each one of us by personal experience, that it affected everyone, but we do not know how deeply. It may be months after the hoped-for happy return of the child that we will become aware of what the event has done to us.

Post-War Neurosis

It is certainly worth noting, for future reference, that no one was surprised by the suggestion that the kidnapers were either a professional band of criminals or belonged to the neurotic "post-war" type. It is quite possible that the identity of the criminals will never be known, but our calm willingness to believe that in fifteen years we have created two loose groups, both of them a mortal danger to the community, is in itself shocking. We haven't been exactly unconscious of their existence, of course, but now we recognize them not as the subjects of gangster movies and modern novels. They seem to be digging under the solid walls of confidence behind which we have conducted our daily affairs.

Who Can Be Pleased?

A writer in the New York American put the case bluntly when he said that society had failed to protect the Lindberghs, and therefore had no claim upon them, having forfeited the right to ask that the rapture of the criminals should come before the return of the child. If we did not know it before, we know now that certain safeguards have crumbled away and that a new idea of what society is for has come into being. I doubt whether anybody can find any satisfaction in the novelty.

Act of God in China?

Insurance agents, a class of useful citizens suffering from the excessive zeal of a few, ought to be proud to think that what the League of Nations has been unable to do, their profession may accomplish. That is, they may find a name for what is going on in China. Insurance of property in Shanghai carries the usual provisos, and the companies now being asked to pay for damage done by the armies are insisting that a war is on and—a thought which must be unpleasing to the truly religious—that the war is an act of God. The insured, like the League of Nations, cannot bring themselves to believe that what they have witnessed and suffered is really a war.

It is, of course, no new thing for men not to know what they are doing while they are doing it. [illegible] a definition of war in peace [illegible] Economists [illegible] the [illegible] of the recommendations of the War Policies Commission should ever be accepted. The most important proposal is that 95 per cent of all income above the previous three-year average should be turned over to the Government. Peace, therefore, may become profitable.

That, at any rate, would be a novelty.

U. S. FINANCIAL POLICY 'WISE'

London, March 11 (AP)—Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told the House of Commons today he believed there was no possibility that the United States would be forced off the gold standard.

"Financial measures they have taken there were wisely conceived and may perhaps prove beneficial not only to that great country but to the whole world," he said.

Chamberlain's statement was preceded by a speech by Sir Herbert Samuel, home secretary, who hinted there was a possibility of some inflation followed by France's action forcing Great Britain back onto the gold standard against her will.

At the conclusion of this exchange the gold standard bill extending suspension of the standard for another year was passed on second reading without a division.

MONEY IS GOING BACK TO BANKS

And from the purse, said Chairman Frank Knox, flow hoarded millions back to the banks and channels of trade, the new issue of 2 per cent U. S. Treasury certificates furnishing momentum.

Seven million dollars was the gain of Atlanta's bank deposits since February 1. Two Louisville banks found their savings accounts growing by $2 600 000 since January 9.

Massachusetts said money was coming in rapidly, New Jersey declared its campaign was "going beautifully" and volunteers in other states drove on.

Two thousand six hundred canvassed Michigan, 800 communities were organizing in Iowa and 200 local chairmen found Pennsylvania's response "enthusiastic."

Civil Divorce Law in Effect in Spain

Madrid, March 11 (AP)—Spain's new divorce code went into effect today with publication in the official gazette of the new law recognizing civil divorce for the first time in Spain's history.

Heretofore divorce has been virtually forced on the ecclesiastic authorities but the civil courts look for a free hand in the next few weeks. The lawyers, particularly the outstanding women lawyers, already have numerous divorce cases on file.

Mrs. Gann to Speak in New Hampshire

Concord, N. H., March 11 (AP)—Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of Vice-President Charles Curtis, has accepted an invitation to be the principal speaker and guest of honor at the annual luncheon of the Women's Division of the New Hampshire Republican committee at Manchester, April 13.

Governor John G. Winant and Senator George H. Moses also will attend.

Radio's Famous Father Coughlin « His Works and Messages

By ALAN FRAZER

(Copyright, 1932, by the Boston Evening American)

This country gained a devoted foster son when Fr. Coughlin came across the border from his teaching in Canada.

His adopted land was to see him soar to fame in the short space of half a dozen years. Toronto was to remember him and glory in his achievements. Hamilton was to boast of its native son. And not only the United States, but Canada as well, was to echo to his praises.

From the beginning he proved himself an ardent pa[illegible]

He had not forgotten that his grandfather was a product [illegible] great new world nor that his father was a son of the Middle West.

And time had not dimmed the flame in his heart [illegible] him to serve his fellow men to the best of his ability and with the strength of his soul.

Now he plunged into his new work with a will [illegible] priest small of stature but with the energy of a [illegible]

He kept fit in the gymnasium as he always has since his athletic school days. Though he couldn't keep his girth from expanding ever so slowly, his relentless [illegible] kept his muscles hard.

SHIFTED TO DETROIT

He was in fighting trim. As he is today. You can tell it by the timbre of his voice. Could you see him, you would know it by the way he sweeps through his busy, almost endless days. By his freshness at their close when he is [illegible] and planning far into the night.

Only six months after he was established at Kalamazoo he was called to Detroit, seat of the diocese, by Rt. Rev. Michael [illegible] Gallagher, D. D., the bishop, and placed at St. Leo's as assistant pastor.

This was an opportunity for service! Detroit has become the "Fourth City" and in the parish that centered at Grand River and Fifteenth st. Fr. Coughlin found plenty of work for his [illegible] and [illegible]

FOUNDED SHRINE

Then came another call from Bishop Gallagher.

The Little Flower of Jesus had been canonized by Pope Pius [illegible] 1925. The following year Fr. Coughlin was instructed to found a [illegible] of St. Therese of [illegible] at Royal Oak, a suburb of Detroit, to be known as The Shrine of the Little Flower.

There was already a church [illegible] Mary's, at Royal Oak, but the new shrine was to have its own parish.

Here he has fought for his fellow men. Fought to save them. Fought to help them.

Fought also to help [illegible] in fortune and [illegible]

As when he [illegible] these words reproduced with his permission and that of his publishers:

"Before wishing you good-night may I leave with you a thought for the week.

"Depressing in one sense you might think it. Golden and joyous when you discover the beauty within it.

"Were you gifted with the wings of fancy, I would ask you to come with me to the hundreds of hospitals scattered throughout our great nation.

"Each is a Calvary. Each bed is a cross where suffers in pain and in anguish some brother or sister of Jesus Christ.

"Or else, journey with me as we pass by the cold, gray walls of our poorhouses; the barred windows of our prisons; the uninviting entrances of our institutions for the insane.

"There, too, are your brothers and your sisters, lonely and sad and broken hearted.

"How many roof trees shelter a lonesome mother?

"How many poor unfortunates, in whose hearts the fire of hope burns so slowly, so dimly! Magdalens, some of them; sinners, all of them!

POWER OF PRAYER

"Did you ever weigh the tremendous power of a little prayer, a little act of mortification which you could offer to the Sacred Heart of Jesus Christ Who loves every one of them?

"Perhaps the prayer which you will whisper each day this week for those unfortunates will be the purchase price of resignation to God's holy will on the part of the sufferer; will be the turning point in winning the grace and benediction from heaven's throne of mercy for a sinner, in moving a calloused heart to murmur an act of contrition as the cold, uplifted finger of death beckons someone to his last resting place.

"If a cup of cold water given in His Sacred Name shall not go unrewarded, neither shall your prayer or mortification be unremembered.

"I ask you to look beneath the sadness and squalor and poverty of life, and see in our less fortunate friends another Christ as he hangs upon the cross desolate and dejected.

"I ask you to remember his words: 'My God! My God! Why hast Thou forsaken me?' 'At least you, my friend, have pity on Me!' is the cry of the spiritual, the mental and the spiritual shut-ins.

"Let us reverently move our lips and hearts in prayer for those, our forsaken brothers and sisters."

(The story of Fr. Coughlin will be continued in tomorrow's Boston Evening American. Millions know his voice and are talking of him. A story you cannot afford to miss!)

COMMONER IS BRIDE OF PRINCE

London, March 11 (AP)—Prince Lennart, grandson of King Gustave of Swedn, and Miss Karin Nissvandt, daughter of a wealthy Stockholm business man, were married at the Prince's Row registry office today.

The Prince and his fiancee came to London a fortnight ago for their wedding. They came here because King Gustav refused his consent to the marriage and it could not be solemnized in Sweden.

The Prince's mother, the Grand Duchess Marie of Russia, came from New York a week ago but did not attend the wedding.

The Prince renounced his right to the succession to the Swedish throne in order to marry his bride who is a commoner. They plan to live in Switzerland where the Prince has an estate. He will devote his time largely to cattle raising.

NEW ENGLAND DRESSED FRESH PORK

He need never have suffered for all those years

His headaches, poor appetite, low vitality could have been corrected by eating a delicious cereal containing "bulk" and Vitamin B

HIS poor health resulted from constipation. It brought dull headaches to cloud his days, sleeplessness to break his nights. Office hours were handicapped. Ambition blunted.

He tried to correct his condition—with pills and drugs. He found he had to keep increasing dosage to get results. Then, one lucky day, he heard about Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

He put this tempting cereal on his daily menu. In a month, it seemed hard to believe he was the same man. A new spring to his step. A new light in his eyes. A new outlook on life.

What makes Kellogg's ALL-BRAN so good for you? It furnishes two things needed to overcome common constipation: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines; Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. In addition, ALL-BRAN supplies twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Inside the body it absorbs moisture, and forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. In severe cases, use ALL-BRAN with each meal. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, softer, more palatable. Enjoy as a cereal or use in cooking. In the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

GERMANS' VOTE SUNDAY VITAL TO EUROPE

The German presidential election Sunday is the first of a series of continental elections this spring that will do much to decide Europe's fate for the coming seven years. H. W. Von Doemming, who has written the following article for International News Service, is United States representative of the Telegraphen Union, German news agency, and of the August Scherl group of newspapers.

By H W. VON DOEMMING

The German election Sunday, March 13, is of more than European interest, because the power exercised by the Reich's president in accordance with the Constitution of Weimar, enables him to influences the German political game in decisive manner.

Probably none of the Stresemann or the Bruening cabinets would have emerged victorious from the many ballots in the Reichstag, and Bruening certainly would not have remained in power if President Von Hindenburg had not backed them with al lthe political power and personal influence of his outstanding personality

HINDENBURG "TRAGEDY."

It is one of the historical tragedies that Von Hindenburg has lost most of the confidence and, consequently, the votes of his former Nationalist followers, and that for re-election he will have to depend on the so-called middle parties i. e., the Catholic Center, the People's Party, the Democrats and partly the Socialists, all held responsible for the revolution of 1918

The moderate Hugenberg Nationalists have put Duesterberg into the field as a second leader of the powerful "Steel Helmet" (similar to the American Legion), and he will draw most of the votes of the Nationalists, Monarchists and farmers.

HITLERITE AIMS.

Adolph Hitler, leader of the National Socialists, justly expects to get all their votes on the plea for unconditional repudiation of all political debts while recognizing private debts of the Reich and its citizens. They aim, too, at recovery of the former German colonies and the Polish Corridor

Candidate Winter represents a small local group of property owners seeking revalion of their devalorized properties

The definite result probably will depend on a second "run off" election day, April 10, for which entirely new candidates may be nominated.

ACCUSE POLICE IN FORD DEATHS

Detroit, March 11 (AP)—The American Civil Liberties Union today made plans to prosecute members of the Dearborn police force for their part in the riot at the Ford Motor Company's River Rouge plant, Monday, in which four persons were shot to death and more than a score wounded.

The prosecution will be under the direction of Roger N Baldwin of the Civil Liberties Union, who arrived in Detroit last night to investigate the case. The union contemplates proceedings to fix the responsibility for the shootings and later suits for damages.

Baldwin attacked the Michigan law which fails to provide for charges against officers who kill or wound persons during riots. He said the law was unconstitutional.

"The Civil Liberties Union intends to attack this law in the courts and, if necessary, carry the fight on constitutional grounds to the highest court in the country," he said.

TROTSKY PUTS RUSSIA IN NEW LIGHT

History of Revolution Dispels Conception of Soviets as Bomb Tossing Peasants

By LINCOLN KIRSTEIN

SURELY ONE of the most valuable and illuminating histories of our time is the three-thick volume of the "History of the Russian Revolution" by Leon Trotsky, (Simon and Schuster). It is, at the moment, pre-eminent as the documentary analysis of the Revolution, and as such, will remain an inexhaustible mine of information for future historians

But more important to us, it is an absolutely thrilling history, which for sheer excitement, mass action, vivid climax and brilliant shots of personalities, is comparable to the great Russian moving pictures, "The End of St. Petersburg" or "Ten Days that Shook the World."

No longer can the popular idea of the Russian Revolution, as seen by our more terrified cartoonists, hold. For years, Americans were delighted to imagine the Russians as peasants in dirty boots, in need of a shave, with a lighted bomb in one hand and a bottle of something labeled Vodka in the other. Thus, for 10 years, we disposed in our ignorance, of the largest country in the world, where dwell over 365 separate nations, comprising over a sixth of the entire population of the globe.

THREATS OF "DUMPING"

Whatever we may think of the dangers or advantages of Communism, however one may credit or discredit the rumors of the Soviet success or failure of the Five Year Plan, there can be no doubt in anyone's mind that there exists in Russia today a more or less coagulated, directed and unified force which can increasingly compete with the industrial nations of the rest of the world

Russian wheat dumping is still a threat in the Chicago grain pits. Russian technicians have borrowed the greatest American engineers to harness their extraordinary water power potential.

In short, there is in 1932, an industrialized attitude of work for the state, where in 1912 there was merely a corrupt court, functioning blindly on the brink of an abyss ignoring the smouldering, servile millions that were to become the triumphant Russian proletariat

The story of how that transformation was accomplished by means of the greatest revolution the world has ever known, is told by Leon Trotsky, the one man most responsible for it, except the dead Lenin.

Trotsky himself is a dramatic figure. At the present he lives on the small isle of Prinkipo, not far from Constantinople, an exile from the country he did so much to liberate. Trotsky finds himself an enemy of the present dictator, Stalin. He has been officially discredited by his former countrymen. He is denied any other asylum by most of the governments of the world

Three years ago, his house with all his invaluable papers and records in it were destroyed by fire, which may or may not have been caused by Soviet agents, and in spite of all this, he has written this history of the Russian Revolution as he helped create it, without personal recrimination, always referring to himself in the third person, and even then not often.

Trotsky was deprived of his power in Russia because he continued to believe in and insist upon the program of World Revolution as opposed to Stalin, who as a practical party man, felt that he had to centralize on Russian internal problems before the rest of the outside world was communized.

AUTHENTIC, UNBIASED

In spite of Trotsky's personal quarrel with Stalin (which one can mention in his history at all) he has had the benefit of the official documents at the Lenin Institute in Moscow and his history is accepted by the Moscovites themselves as authentic and unbiased.

At the outbreak of the Revolution, Trotsky was a seasoned worker in problems of social equity. As early as 1905, at the time of the terrible Tzarist massacres he was elected President of the First St. Petersburg Soviet. He escaped from exile in Siberia and has had similar adventures in South Russia, Italy, Switzerland, France and Spain.

As organizer and leader of the insurrection of October 1917 he commanded the forces of the Bolshevik revolution, about which his book is essentially written. He also was in the United States as the editor of an important Russian newspaper, which gave rise to the grotesque legends that he and Lenin were born as poor Jews on the New York Ghetto

IN WORLD WAR DAYS

The book starts with a short historical analysis of the typical Russian nation l personalities a very necessary preface to anyone who may hope to comprehend the Russian temperament

He goes on to describe the position of Tzarist Russia in the World War, the tremendous sacrifice of men and arms made through the stupidities of the supreme imperial command and he contrasts the place in the social and political structure of the proletariat with the peasants

There is a brilliant descriptive chapter on the personal characters of the Tzar and Tzarina, in which he likens them and the surroundings in which they found themselves to Louis XVI of France and Marie Antoinette dancing gaily at Versailles on that second most terrible and important finals of worn out

CUTS OFF HEADS TO CUT TAXES

Chicago, March 11 (AP)—Cook county and Chicago wanted an efficiency expert for an assessor so badly, they persuaded J. L. Jacobs to take the job although he figured it was one and others turned it down.

He gave them his idea of efficiency by dismissing 400 employes, hired for a time, it will not be necessary for months

Taxpayers have refused to pay their taxes because, they point out, real estate here too big a burden and so much personal property was put on the list.

POPE'S RAILROAD READY

Very Finest Train for Smallest of Lines

Vatican City, March 11 (AP)—The Vatican's new railroad, said to be the smallest line in the world, is ready for its first test.

Pope Pius XI will ride in the first train and thereafter the road will be used to transport building materials for the construction of the Vatican State.

The Pope's special train, of a magnificence probably unsurpassed in the history of railroads, consists of three coaches—one for the throne and one containing a little chapel and the third a private coach in which the Pontiff may dine and sleep.

As the occasion arises there will be other coaches for members of the papal household, the Swiss guard and similar groups. All the coaches are of steel, painted dark red and each carries the pontifical coat of arms in bronze.

No Pope has ridden in a railroad train since 1870.

GENERAL SALES TAX PROPOSAL INDORSED

Washington, March 11 (US)—Congress must either levy a general manufacturers' sales tax with a low rate, or single out a few industries for heavy special taxes in order to balance the federal budget Acting Chairman [illegible] of the House ways and means committee told the House in opening debate on the $1,096,000,000 tax bill.

He strongly endorsed the provision for a general manufacturers' sales tax with a rate of [illegible] per cent and designed to produce $600,000,000 a year.

All other sources of revenue have been exhausted, he said. The revenue from [illegible] the estate and gift tax, the [illegible] rich "plum" from banking corporation earnings [illegible] a 2½ per cent and from [illegible] administrative features of the tax system, will [illegible] $241,000,000 needed [illegible] budget, he pointed out.

The Treasury Department opposed hitting a few selected industries.

The former mayor stressed that now is the time to create and "double purchasing power and to cut wages."

Other speakers were Ralph Mann, manager of the Lenox Jewelry Co. and retiring president of the organization, which represents the leading credit stores of Boston Judge Frankland W. Miles of the Probate District Court, and the newly elected president, Ephraim A. Brest.

A report from the new president of the organization, Wallace Feeney, credit manager of Sears Roebuck Co., was read by Mr. Brest [illegible] explanation that Mr. Feeney was out of town.

The report said that the Boston Credit Bureau has intimate records on the credit reliability of more than 100,000 persons in Greater Boston and that credit store members have been saved large sums through these records.

Nathaniel A. Horowitz, treasurer of the organization and a member of the Word Radio Corporation, headed the entertainment committee. He was assisted by Harry Silver, William E. Baldwin, Gladys M. Nolan and Charles Hontgen.

WASH? NO, WATER'S BAD

Paint Yourself, Is Doctor's Advice

Water's job is getting scarcer

Not much for the stuff to do

Used to be a perfect cleaner,

Now that's out, and are we blue!

Then they used the salty mixture

To float baste in, as it were,

But that job's out of the picture—

For boats are flying in the air

Then the stuff went under bridges

Came down from the skies as rain

Brought the daffodils to ridges—

Jobs we find both quaint and vain.

Some folks even tried it out

In their baths each Saturday,

But, we raise a mournful shout,

Even that is now [illegible]

—Profit and Loss.

New York, March 11—Before prohibition water was a grand institution.

Now it is as useless as a cocktail shaker at a W. C. T. U. meeting and as discredited as the Republican administration.

You might go so far as say—aw, come—that all the fluid is good for nowadays is to bring doubleheaders to the ball park—if the baseball season were open.

It seems, when you were young water was considered an agent of dirt which is next thing to godliness. Now that's off.

SAYS IT'S TERRIBLE

Water, and we have good authority is absolutely terrible as a face cleanser. Seeing, too, how it rots auto tires, only a few of the most rabid prohibitionists swallow it unadulterated. Others know that auto tires can stand a whole lot more than a man's stomach.

And here's the big argument—"The good Lord didn't intend that we wash our faces with soap and water."

That's a direct quotation from Dr. Irvine W. Grote, champion of cosmetics of the University of Chattanooga, which is in Tennessee.

REMOVES LOTS OF THINGS

And Dr. Grote has his arguments. He points out that water takes off the protective coat of oil from the mugs of the multitude—which isn't to be says, good. In fact Dr Grote insists that those who are so foo-hardy as to wash their faces should —MUST—use a flock of cream (face) to replace it.

He even goes back into history in his line of reasoning, pointing out that in ancient times women used far more rouge than now, blackened the tops of their eyes and painted their faces not only red, but pink and cream.

To carry on der doctor's idea you might match your morning-after feeling with your complexion. Why keep that dark brown taste to yourself? Put it on and make your friends envious!

Search in Vain for Donnelly Kidnapers

Kansas City, March 11—Police detectives were back today from the East after a vain search for Martin Depew, steam shovel operator, alleged leader of the kidnapers of Mrs. Nell Donnelly, wealthy garment manufacturer of Kansas City.

THIS IS LIFE

BUSINESS METHODS AID IN RAPID ADVANCE OF EDUCATION

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

THE LATEST NEWS from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology shows in interesting fashion how the lessons of business may be applied to the higher education. So far as I know

PROF. ROGERS

Technology was the first educational institution in the United States to possess both a president and a chairman of the board of directors (i. e., the Corporation). This was effected on the election of Dr. Karl Compton as president, to save President Stratton from the strain of administering alone so great an organization as Technology has become.

On Dr. Stratton's death President Compton was left under the same strain, and the new arrangement, announced yesterday, is the result. There is to be a vice-president, an office almost as novel in college administration as the chairman of the board.

• • •

Now a University of Science

Furthermore, the school is to be divided into three administrative divisions, each with its Dean or department manager; the School of Science, the School of Engineering, and the School of Architecture. In addition, there is to be the Division of the Humanities, the basic studies in liberal arts, which Technology has always considered important, and the Division of Industrial Cooperation and Research, which furnishes the liaison between the Institute and industry and the Institute's graduates. Beside this, the graduate work is to be organized into a separate graduate school with its own Dean.

This departmentalization means that the Technology of today is to be considered no longer merely a school of technology and applied science but indubitably a university of science. For several years the influx of students from other colleges, where they have taken their liberal arts work, has been large and increasing, although it has never matched in numbers the entering freshmen. For many years the number of men doing graduate work for the doctorate has been increasing, until now they number in the hundreds.

And of late years the purely scientific subjects with no engineering angle, such as biology and public health, chemistry, physics and mathematics have been attracting more and more men.

The result is that the institution across the river is to all intents and purposes a university and must be run like one. There are departments and instructors enough to constitute a modest School of Liberal Arts, should one be needed or desired, and with the addition of the schools of science, engineering and architecture, plus the graduate school, all we lack is a school of theology!

Vast Development in 20 Years

In the 20 years (or nearly) in which I have been teaching there, the development has been marvelous. The faculty has doubled in size and the instructing staff much more than doubled. The student body has doubled, from something like 1600 to over 3000. And a rather poor and shabby plant, consisting of two main buildings on Boylston st., plus a number of cramped and makeshift edifices tucked away where now the University Club stands, has expanded into the magnificent group on the Charles, with its newest wing for the study of physics, one of the most elaborate in the world. And the school that had to struggle at times to keep its doors open, and never had money enough for what it had to do, is now fifth in the size of its endowment among all the endowed universities of America.

But that increase has been won at great sacrifice. President William Barton Rogers died in harness, returning to the presidency after he had resigned, to keep the school open in the lean days after the Civil War. President Walker, the economist, died in harness, struggling with inadequate funds and public apathy. President Maclaurin died almost certainly of exhaustion from his Herculean efforts in raising the endowment to support our magnificent plant. President Stratton died in harness.

The days are over when the president of a large educational institution can be both a scholar and a business man, an administrator, a publicist, a money raiser, and an educational expert. The educational progress of Technology was held up for years, while Dr. Maclaurin gave his efforts to secure the present plant and endowment. Just as he was ready to begin his real work, that of scientist and educator, he died.

It was such reflections as these, doubtless, that made the Corporation resolve to give Dr. Stratton a co-adjutor and now to give one to President Compton. No great business of today would dare for a moment to put all its eggs into one basket, to risk everything on the life of one man, however strong or however capable. And the university of today is an enterprise of a complexity, scope, and difficulty hardly to be matched by any except the greatest industries.

• • •

Change Brings Challenge

All this elaboration of departmentalism puts a tremendous burden of proof on the powers that be to show that it is advisable and that it is going to help the cause of education. It must not be forgotten that the small, comparatively unorganized institutions of the old days turned out men whose professional accomplishment and public usefulness have never been surpassed. The idea of Mark Hopkins on one end of the log and the student on the other end was of course only a pleasant fiction; but the thing it symbolized was not a fiction.

There is a good deal of criticism today to the effect that the vast multiplication of funds, plants, departments and students in the modern universities does not mean that they are turning out men who are intrinsically better than their fathers were. In fact, a larger proportion of the college graduates of today seem hardly worth the title of educated men. It is not impossible that the increasing emphasis on the university as a vast and highly organized business enterprise has tended to shift the emphasis away from the improvement, social, intellectual and spiritual, of the individual student.

The greater the means possessed by the school, the greater the challenge to do a better job, and the greater the need for a thorough overhauling of the whole concept of education as related to that particular school. That, I expect, will have to be the next step at Technology and many other places. No doubt the challenge will be adequately met.

MEDFORD BANK CASE BEFORE HIGH COURT

Move Started to Make Up Losses by Recovering Big Sum From Officials

Action was started in the Supreme Court today to recover $600,000 from 300 stockholders of the closed Medford Trust Co. to help make up the bank's losses.

Representing Bank Commissioner [illegible], Atty. Robert T. Bushnell asked the court to hold the stockholders liable to the extent of their stock ownership figured on a basis of $20 a share.

The chief stockholders, Bushnell asserts, are the law firm of [illegible] & McKnight and these two men as individuals and members of their families own a total of 11,600 shares out of the 30,000 shares of the bank's stock.

SOME HAVE PAID

Bushnell charges that three stockholders transferred their shares to others shortly before the closing with intent to divest themselves of ownership of stock in a financially unsafe and insolvent bank.

He names them as [illegible] Curtis, Abel S. Price and Alfred De Scenza, and asks that their transfers of stock be set aside and they be liable as if they still owned the shares.

The bill in equity which Bushnell filed states that 30 stockholders have satisfied in full their individual liability voluntarily paying in $18,000 since the closing on October 7, these including William J. Daly $2320, Ernest M. Moore $2800, E. Waldo Reed $[illegible] and Alden W. Tee $1800.

$1,000,000 SOUGHT

The bill alleges Curtis transferred 457 shares to George A. [illegible]dan on Oct. 2, that DeScenza transferred 80 shares to Theresa DeTruzio on Sept. 29 and that Price transferred 162 shares to Donald Price on April 9 and Sept. 2.

Last December action was started in the Supreme Court to hold President Edwin T. McKnight and other officers and directors of the bank liable to the extent of $1,000,000.

Colt Picks Revenge As the Motive

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

At [illegible]30 on New Year's Eve, Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt arrives at the exclusive Mayfair Club in response to a mysterious summons from District Attorney Merle Dougherty. The latter informs Colt he believes Lola Carewe, known as "The Night Club Lady," widow of Gaylord Gifford, the cotton millionaire, is the "higher-up" responsible for numerous jewel robberies perpetrated recently which baffle the police. Lola is slain mysteriously in her apartment. Colt suspects poison. Eunice, the maid, gives startling facts to Colt. Christine Quires is found dead. Mrs. Carewe is put on grill by Colt. Guy Everett, actor, enters the mystery.

NOW READ ON—

"NONE. None at all! That was why I wanted you to come in on the jewel robbery case. I meant to give you the tip and you could follow it through. Right?"

"Sure—at my office."

"Will you have it sent round to my office in the morning?"

"With pleasure."

"An interesting theory," Colt ruminated. "But it will hardly cover all our facts."

"Look at that ruby Lola wore last night," urged the District Attorney. "How did that get around her neck?"

"There," demurred Colt, "is what seems to me a weak link in your theory. Such a jewel would be too conspicuous to be worn, if it were stolen property. Somebody would eventually recognize it. I have already asked our jewel expert at headquarters to check on that ruby—but I fancy we shall find that Lola came by it quite honestly—as that term is nowadays understood."

DOUGHERTY'S THEORY

"It depends on where the jewel was stolen, and from whom," argued Dougherty, by no means convinced. "Anyway, let me put my whole theory before you. Christina Quires comes down to New York to visit Lola Carewe. In the intimacy of the household she gets wise to Lola's game—a stalker for loot for a jewel ring. The mob finds out that she has found them out. She is in danger to them ever afterward. So is Lola. So they plan to get rid of both of them. And they do!"

"Then you conceive," Colt stated finally, "that the death threat note was a hoax?"

"Undoubtedly!"

"And the deaths of the dog and the monkey a part of a prearranged stratagem?"

"They may have been sheer coincidences."

Colt's brow knitted in doubt.

"But why?" he persisted. "Why go through all that elaborate hocus-pocus of the note? It seems so unreasonable, so absurdly unnecessary!"

LIFTED HIS FINGER

"Thatcher," he remonstrated, "do I have to instruct you as to the silly and amazing things that criminals do? You know the history of crimes as well as I do, and better."

In this contention Colt had to agree that District Attorney Dougherty was correct. To reconstruct any case on the theory that a criminal, however clever, is a reasonable human being, is generally a fatal error.

"Nevertheless," persisted the Commissioner, "we cannot ignore the death of the dog and the parrot, or the sending of the death-note. There are certain obvious conclusions to be drawn from those circumstances. They show malice. And a kind of folk-lore superstition. Such murders have been known to occur in Roumania."

"Too early to argue. But malice is there—malice in the killing of two innocent creatures, malice in the note that boasted of those two useless killings and the threat to Lola. The killer wanted Lola to know that death was coming; wanted her to suffer anticipatory pangs. Malice, sprung from revenge, is hence a probable motive. The killer is intelligent,

SHIPS RUSH TO AID OF RESCUE CRAFT, HERSELF IN PERIL

25 MEN ABOARD AS STEAMER ASKS AID

Going to the Aid of German Freighter Harburg When an Accident Befalls

En route through heavy seas to the aid of a distressed ship off Halifax, the British steamer Foundation Franklin herself sent out a distress call today. Her steering gear was damaged in a storm.

Because of her proximity to Sable Island and vessels in the vicinity and coast guard craft were ordered to her aid.

The Foundation Franklin carries a crew of 25 to 30 men and is used for general salvage work off Halifax.

The ship she seeks to aid is the German freighter Harburg en route from Bremen to New York with a valuable cargo. The Harburg is 200 miles off Halifax.

CREW EN ROUTE HERE.

The Harburg had a similar mishap as her would-be rescuer, but her crew rigged a jury rudder that is keeping her out of immediate danger, according to reports.

Meanwhile the 24-man crew of the sunken collier H. F. Dettinger, ben were en route to Boston today aboard the British freighter Lagarbank.

They were rescued early yesterday during a lull in the northwest storm that soon resumed and sank their craft a bare few hours after they left it.

With her propeller gone the ship was kept underway for two days to prevent sinking.

OSSIPEE IS DAMAGED.

The rescue ship is making slow progress against the northwest winds that continued today. She is expected to reach here late Saturday night or early Sunday to dock at either Charlestown or East Boston.

The cutter Ossipee lost a surf boat, a davit, and other gear, the after deck of the destroyer Conyngham was swept of equipment and the passenger steamer Adriatic swung off her course with passengers and mail during the three-day drama of the sea.

12 Men Hunted on Lost Guard Boat and Barge

Norfolk, Va., March 11 (AP)—Coast guards today were continuing their search for the patrol boat CG-218, missing since Monday with her crew of seven, and for the barge Deepwater, which had five men aboard and which has not been seen since Sunday night.

KIDNAP 'CLUE' VANISHES

ABANDONED CAR 'CLUE' FADES

Another Lindbergh kidnaping lie went into the discard today when a New Jersey stenographer found abandoned on High st., Jamaica Plain, was claimed by a New Jersey man who is employed by a Boston paper products company.

William S. Beecher Jr. of Dorchester, owner of the car, appeared after a police guard had been placed on it. He explained how it happened to be there.

"I left my automobile in the parking place two days ago," he said, "and I was going to come after it upon the conclusion of some business transactions here."

"When I came back to my car this morning I found it had two flat tires and discovered that someone had drained the gasoline tank.

Woman's 'Hot' Kidnap Tip Here Puts 3 Sleuths to Work

Local tips on the Lindbergh baby reached the extreme of something or other in a telephone call to Supt Crowley today.

The caller, a woman said she was a private detective and that yesterday she overheard two women talking about the case. She followed them into a drug store where one woman bought a two cent stamp and mailed a letter addressed to Col Lindbergh.

She then followed the woman to a Harrison ave address which she made known to the superintendent.

Inspectors Donovan McDonald and Dodge were assigned to find what it is all about, if anything.

PEACE NEAR IN DRESS STRIKE

Twelve of the 52 shops in the garment strike area signed peace terms today and workers will return Monday, according to an announcement by union officials.

The terms call for a work week of 40 hours and no reduction in pay. Philip Kramer, vice-president of the union, announced.

The agreements came after conferences last night between strikers and garment manufacturers at which Governor Ely presided. Members of the Governor's Board of Arbitration were present.

The strike was declared a week ago, but today, save for one flurry when the escort of three girl strikers was attacked and beaten, and two window panes were broken, the picket lines were orderly.

Price were soon on the scene but were forbidden by the strikers and would not make formal complaint. All strikers escaped.

In the event of differences arising not settled by next Wednesday, Kramer and the State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation will call conferences of both sides to settle the difficulties. Should the manufacturers refuse to attend the call of the board, Governor Ely announced that the dispute would be taken to the courts.

Seventeen and four women were found guilty by Judge Bolster in municipal court today of obstructing the picket line while acting as agents in the garment strike, and were each fined $50.

Those fined included Joseph Mosco, business agent of the Greater New England Union; Barnet Segal, Rubin Rabinowitz, Solomon Lipnick, Angelo DiMaggio, David Lopez, Thomas Russo, Anna Verdi, Jos. Lozzano and Anna Orlandi; Benjamin F. Gleason and Charles of the La Grange Co., who testified that the defendants tried to force passage in Washington Boulevard and Bennet sts. All the defendants appealed, and were released on their own recognizance.

M'KNIGHT IRKS COUNSEL BY TESTIMONY

Medford Bank Head Also Target for Questions by the Judge at Trial Today

Testimony by President Edwin T. McKnight of the closed Medford Trust Co. in Middlesex Superior Court today aroused the wrath of counsel for his co-defendant, Frank W. Lovering, a director of the bank.

McKnight, defending himself against the charge of making loans on inadequate security also found himself the target of questions by Judge Harold P. Williams who is hearing the case.

RELIED ON FIGURES

McKnight testified he relied entirely on figures given by Frank and Louis Lovering and their recommendations as to the value of the property on which loans were being made.

This statement, repeated several times, finally brought Atty. George H. Lucey to his feet with the question:

"Well, weren't there any other elements that entered into your mind before the approval of the loans?"

McKnight admitted there was.

"One of the things that disturbs me is that someone scratched out $38,000 and wrote in $42,000 on the loan application," said Judge Williams, "Why didn't you have the applicant write in the new figures?"

JUDGE IS "SURE"

"I'm not sure that he didn't," replied McKnight.

"Well, I am," said Judge Williams.

McKnight declared that David R. Siegel, who got the loans, never told him another bank had foreclosed on some of the properties. He said Siegel said to him and told him he could not get a loan at the Industrial Bank & Trust Co. and he wanted one from the Medford Trust Co.

BACON AND SALTONSTALL CALLED 'STATE ST. ERRAND BOYS'

GOODWIN SAYS THEY PUT TAX LOAD ON POOR

Fin. Com. Head Launches Bitter Attack on the Move to Increase Levy by $3,000,000

President Bacon of the Senate and Speaker Saltonstall of the House were called "the errand boys of State Street," by Frank A. Goodwin today.

Goodwin unleashed a bitter attack upon the $3,000,000 tax increase provided in the State budget [illegible] in the House yesterday. Although he is chairman of the Boston Finance Commission, he spoke in the capacity of president of the newly formed Automobile Owners Association.

His chief complaint was the failure of the Legislature to provide for taxation on the vast untaxed properties. Auto owners and home owners and rent payers are left holding the bag, he asserted.

BURDEN ON POOR

The Massachusetts Tax Association is running the Legislature, he said, and this organization "is made up of all the heads of the banks, public utilities, including the power trust, and many of the insurance people."

He continued:

"They are now represented at the State House by a powerful organization with several lobbyists, opposing any legislation that will take the load from the backs of the poor, and they are even going so far as to advocate measures that will add further to the burden of the rank and file.

This association recommended to the Legislature this year an increase of two cents a gallon for gasoline and they are the ones who are running the Legislature, and so long as the Representatives and Senators are under their domination, real estate will continue to be bled white and the automobilist will continue to be the easiest sucker to pick on.

"The time has come for the automobile owners of this Commonwealth and the home owners, the rent payers, the owners of farms and business establishments, to let their Representatives and Senators know that they are there to represent the people and not take orders from State st. through its errand boys, the president of the Senate and the speaker of the House."

TO CALL MEETING

[illegible] and Secretary [illegible] Campbell of the Automobile Owners Association would call a mass meeting for Tuesday to form a protest against the proposal to meet the tax rate increase burden by increased assessment of income from the [illegible] tax.

"The commendation of the ways and means committee of the Legislature by President Bacon of the Senate is a smoke screen to divert the attention of the public from the refusal of the State st. controlled Legislature to relieve the home owners and rent payers of Massachusetts from the tremendous burden they are now bearing," he said.

Governor Ely, President Bacon and Speaker Saltonstall as the result of masterly administration, have increased the state tax burden of the people $3,000,000.

This has been done, notwithstanding drastic cuts in certain expenditures. This tax increase was brought about by extravagant expenditures last year, including $100,000 for the joke special session.

"There is but one way aside from the curtailing of expenditures that relief can be given and that is by raising more revenue. There is just one place from which to raise revenue and that is from the untaxed millions of wealth now evading taxation."

too, having perfected such a subtle method of murder that even the sending of that note seems safe—a kind of defiant assurance is there, the pleasure of torturing the doomed girl is greater than the risk of discovery."

"What are we doing. Looking into Lola's life for causes of revenge. And looking into Lola's body for causes of her death—the subtle method that was used. When that is isolated, we shall ask ourselves who had access to that means of murder. That is why we need more facts.

I was very glad," remarked Dougherty, "that you got that hypodermic syringe from Dr. Baldwin. I would not be surprised if he were an active part of the scheme."

"But how do you connect Baldwin with the case at all—under your jewel thief theory?"

He was her doctor. Doctors often find out the most secret of family affairs. She may have him in her power. Don't forget what Eunice James told us."

[illegible]

"And is that as far as you go?" he asked mildly.

"Oh, there are lots of details still to be cleared—we haven't got a case at the moment—but we can get it by digging."

"Such as?"

"Oh, major mysteries and minor mysteries—and it will take a smarter cop than I, at this stage of the game, to tell which is major and which is minor."

"Nevertheless?"

"Mrs. Carewe says she is an Englishwoman. Yet she speaks with an almost indetectable foreign accent. Why should she lie about her origin?"

"But that isn't necessarily important, Thatcher?"

"Real clues often do not seem to be necessarily important when you find them. Like that picture of Basil on Lola's bureau. You can call it guess-work if you like, but I know that I have seen those earnest, eager features somewhere before. I cannot get that unknown boy's face out of my mind. The picture may not necessarily be important—but I believe it is. The mention of his name threw old Mrs. Carewe into a fit. Yet she said she did not know his last name. And Lola had been kissing the portrait—the scarlet mark of her lip-stick was on the glass."

"You consider these major mysteries?" asked Dougherty lugubriously.

"Time will tell. Certainly the question of Christine Quires' movements between twelve-fifteen o'clock when she left the elevator and four o'clock, when we discovered her lying stiff, wet and dead is a major mystery. We searched those rooms thoroughly—we still do not know where she could have been concealed although I have a theory about that. How did she get into the apartment without being seen by the three people in the place? And how did her killer get in—if none of the three persons present in the apartment is guilty?"

"Those questions, I agree, are for the moment unanswerable," rumbled Dougherty.

"Yet there are others that pique my curiosity even more," continued the Commissioner. "Why is it, for example, that the two rooms of mother and daughter offer such a crazy contrast to the rest of the apartment and to each other?"

"Does it matter?"

"I don't know. But the contrasts remain—a peasant simplicity in the mother's room, a garish old-fashioned and Victorian fussiness in the daughter's—and the rest of the rooms in chaste modern simplicity. There is something behind that, Dougherty."

"Sounds metaphysical to me!"

"And without metaphysics I have seldom seen any mystery solved. There is the curious three-months' visit of this heiress at Lola's home. Why? Lola had never had another friend visit her for so long. Your jewel theory may be right—but Christine had no jewels to amount to anything. She was heiress to a million. Did Lola intend to advise her about investments, as she did Guy Everett? Mrs. Carewe hinted at something of the kind. There is a lead that promises something. But if it does lead us anywhere, then we shall have to ask ourselves a harder question—why should Lola or anyone else want Christine to die before she received her inheritance?"

"The girl knew too much about the jewel racket," insisted Dougherty doggedly. "I'll bet you find that her brother inherits the money after her."

"But Lola has never met the brother. You see, there is some essential factor that keeps evading us all the time—when we find that missing segment, the rest of the pieces probably will fall into place. Why was Guy Everett so nervous when we questioned him? Did he really go on a solitary auto ride last night? What method was used to kill these two women? Dougherty, old man, I could go on indefinitely reciting the riddles that still have to be answered in this perplexing case!"

When Parents Fall Out, Child Is the One Who Pays

By WINIFRED BLACK

THE RICH and successful doctor kidnaped his little daughter the other day, and now the rich and successful doctor's wife is running all over the continent, north, south, east and west, to find little daughter and her father.

The doctor's wife has filed suit for separate maintenance, and the doctor has filed suit for an out and out divorce.

I wonder where the rich doctor and his poor little puzzled daughter are this very minute? Are they in New York going in and out of picture shows and buying a new toy a day to keep little daughter from crying for her mother?

Little daughter is only two years old, you know, so of course there's a nurse of some kind.

Is she a good nurse, kind and loving as well as intelligent and reliable? Children need love, as much as they need food. They're a good deal like the rest of us in that respect, aren't they?

Are they down South somewhere, the doctor and his little puzzled daughter—going fishing, and learning how to sail a boat and having swims in the well-known ocean, which is, they say, very nice and warm even now in some favored spots?

And the wife who's left behind—why is she so anxious to find her husband and her little girl? Was she really good to them? Did she honestly love the little girl, and play with her, and laugh with her and tell her queer, old-fashioned stories about goblins and mermaids and the Wind's little boy, who is always crying at the window and wanting to come inside and play?

Or did she just use the child as a pretty ornament? Have her dressed and bathed, and perfumed and curled, and set beside her like a doll, in the limousine once in a while, and brought down for dessert at dinner because mama loved to have people say,

What was it all about—the trouble that drove the man to kidnap his little girl and run away with her? Was it his fault, or the fault of the wife?

It couldn't have been the poor little daughter's fault, yet she is the one who's paying for it all—paying for it in loneliness and a kind of vague unhappiness and alarm.

I wonder just how much anyone ought to endure before putting a little helpless child through such an experience?

"My rights." "Your duty." "My happiness." "My youth." "My love." What silly words they are sometimes, and what cruel, selfish words!

I wonder what kind of a woman that little girl, who is running from place to place in hiding from her own mother, is going to make? And just how much her father and mother will have to do with the whole business of her development?

I'm glad I don't have to regulate the world, or approve or disapprove of a soul in it except myself. Aren't you?

Calavos For St. Patrick Parties

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB.

MARTHA LEE Cooking School members certainly seemed mighty enthusiastic about the calavo fruit cup prepared and served at both classes this week. Every one of the four hundred and sixty who attended sampled this luscious new fruit. Calavos, we decided, are alligator pears with a college degree—they graduated from the luxury class into the group of every-day fruits for every-day folks.

The calavo, ready for eating, is soft to the pressure of the whole hand and it takes only a moment to peel it as you would an orange only twice as easily. This leaves the beautiful green calavo to be cut in half and the stone removed. Next it can be diced and served with alternating slices of tomato or oranges with or without a dressing, or it can be eaten as is on the half shell as a salad with lemon juice and salt for dressing, or it may be diced and mixed with other fruits in cocktails, fruit cups or salads. We filled the hollow left by the stone with crushed pineapple and canned grapefruit segments—and was it good! And the fruit cup we served was made thusly:

CALAVO FRUIT CUP

Peel a large calavo and cut into dice. You should have 1 cupful. Add ½ cup of grapefruit sections cut in small pieces, and ½ cup crushed pineapple. Add sufficient of the fruit juice to give the desired amount of liquid. Serve in low sherbet cups. Garnish with a slice of maraschino cherry.

This would make a delicious "opener" for a St. Patrick's Day dinner, topping each serving with a luscious green creme de menthe cherry. The calavo halves, served on crisp lettuce, and the centers filled with crushed pineapple colored pale green with a wee bit of vegetable coloring would be equally appropriate for a St. Patrick's luncheon, dinner or supper.

But it's ideal "as is" for the children. Equal in food value to lean meat, a calavo is digested in just 45 minutes. Each perfectly ripened calavo contains 18 to 22 per cent fruit oil, and it is this that earns it a place on reducing diets. One calavo half with its filling of crushed fruit leaves you comfortably satisfied until your next meal. And Helen M. Bruner, famous Boston health specialist, recommends calavos as an important item on special diets for those recovering from the flu—I'll send you a copy of the diet she prepared for me after my recent cold if you'd like to have it.

Daily True Story

"My Error!"

"I'LL TELL you a little secret. I could never marry a man who wanted me more than I want him. I'm tired of being pursued. That may sound conceited, but it's rather pathetic when you analyze it. Anyway it's true."

The blond young man regained his composure suddenly and sat back on the garden bench. The strains of music coming out on to the moonlit lawn from the ballroom mocked him.

"You mustn't think I love you for your—your money," Terrence Walker said to Gloria. "Oh, please don't think that."

"Oh, I don't, Terry, dear." But the bewildered youth couldn't tell from Gloria Martin's tone whether he was being laughed at or comforted.

"Terry, do me a favor?" he asked, suddenly. "Go in and leave me here alone for a little while. I'm dead tired. I have a headache, and I'm much too depressed to be good company for anyone."

STROLLS IN GARDEN

"Sorry my making eyes to [illegible] puts you in that frame of mind, Terry," said coldly, and left her. Gloria strolled about the garden [illegible] wondering [illegible] with all the gifts that nature and chance had given her she was to be denied that greatest of all, [illegible] really and truly in love, being loved by some man for herself alone.

"But I tell you, child, I don't love you, so why under the sun should I marry you."

Gloria shivered with excitement. The girl's words of indignant wrath meant nothing to her. She wanted to know who this man was, where he was from, how she could meet him.

Gloria cornered Terry in the ballroom and made him introduce her to the black and gloomy man though Terry had merely met him casually. And Terry was forced to call her Miss Maxim in introducing her for some reason of which he was not informed.

They danced. The tall dark man, named Guy Franklin, eclipsed Gloria's view of the ballroom. He wasn't a particularly good dancer. She suggested a stroll in the garden since the evening was so fine and the moon so brilliant.

Weaving his way through the dancers, into the cool evening, and he turned a little pale when she said "Please don't propose to me. I know I'm good looking and all that, but I'm bored stiff with being proposed to in the moonlight. It doesn't mean a thing to me any more. I mean I'll think a lot more of you if you simply omit that. Or—"

BOSS' DAUGHTER

She turned suddenly and faced him. "Perhaps you weren't even thinking of proposing. My error for being so bold. But honestly the men around this town—"

"I'm strange," he said. "I'll not have as strange as you. You aren't just what I [illegible] conceited and yet now why under the sun did you tell me not to propose when I had no idea of doing it? Couldn't you tell I'm not the proposing kind?"

"You can't tell about any kind in the moonlight. Sit here and tell me all about yourself, what you do—everything, how you happen to be here tonight, whether you're engaged, married—"

"No connections," he said. "I'm in this dance because my boss ordered it. He's the town potentate, Clarence Martin. You must know him. I'm his new personnel director from the West. He wants me to mix with the town, so he gets ill and doesn't turn up to introduce me to anyone. I fell into the clutches of a couple of cackling little sub-debs who set grabbing [illegible] away and I put them in their places, thereby ruining my social chances in the town forever.

There is one woman in this town I don't want to meet, and I'm doomed to it sooner or later. I don't think she's here tonight. If so, point her out, and I'll fade when she comes near!"

"Who's the unlucky woman?"

"Mr. Martin's daughter, Gloria. From all I hear she's an impossible creature, has to have men paying court to her all the time; can't move without a flock of slaves in her wake; lives on that sort of thing."

"I don't blame you. She's an impossible girl, anyway. Most of the girls in town are. The only two nice people in the town are you and I."

"Pathetic, isn't it?" said Gloria.

They strolled down towards the river and neither of them noticed how long the minutes grew as they talked eagerly, making new, exciting discoveries about one another. When they did return to the ballroom they found [illegible] Gloria [illegible] "Where to?" he asked. "I'd like to take you home. This has turned into a glorious evening. I didn't think there could be a woman like you in the world, so [illegible] thoroughly adorable."

TAKES GLORIA HOME

He drew up before the address she had given, wound up the drive, stopped at a mansion. "But this—why, you're—this is where Mr. Martin, my employer, lives. Are you his secretary, or any relation?"

He couldn't speak. She felt him trembling, heard him say in a low voice, "Well, you win. I quit before daddy can fire me. And I can do is apologize for my tactless [illegible] Oh, [illegible] can't be true. Why, that other girl I needed—"

"She isn't so impossible, that Gloria. Because I won't marry all the young men who are angling for papa's money I'm set down as a spoiled snob. What do you think the little sub-debs you've let down this evening will be circulating about you? Horrible tales, of course. We're in the same boat. And as for your quitting, you can't think about it. Dad has been raving about you. He'd be furious if he thought he'd lost you through me."

"He won't if I can help it, Gloria." He held her hand in his and then took her fur robe and [illegible] into his arms. "Oh, Gloria, I [illegible] now that I've just discovered you no matter who you are."

She kissed the tip of his nose. "You're not going to lose me ever—if I can help it."

"CHANGE of Life was my trouble. I had hemorrhages and such pains in my side. I sent for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and after the second dose I felt better.

"I kept on taking it and I had no more pain. Now I take it when I feel tired from overwork. Once I took your Herb Medicine for a rash and it helped me." Mrs. Catherine Buck, 611 Milford Road, Berlin, New Jersey.

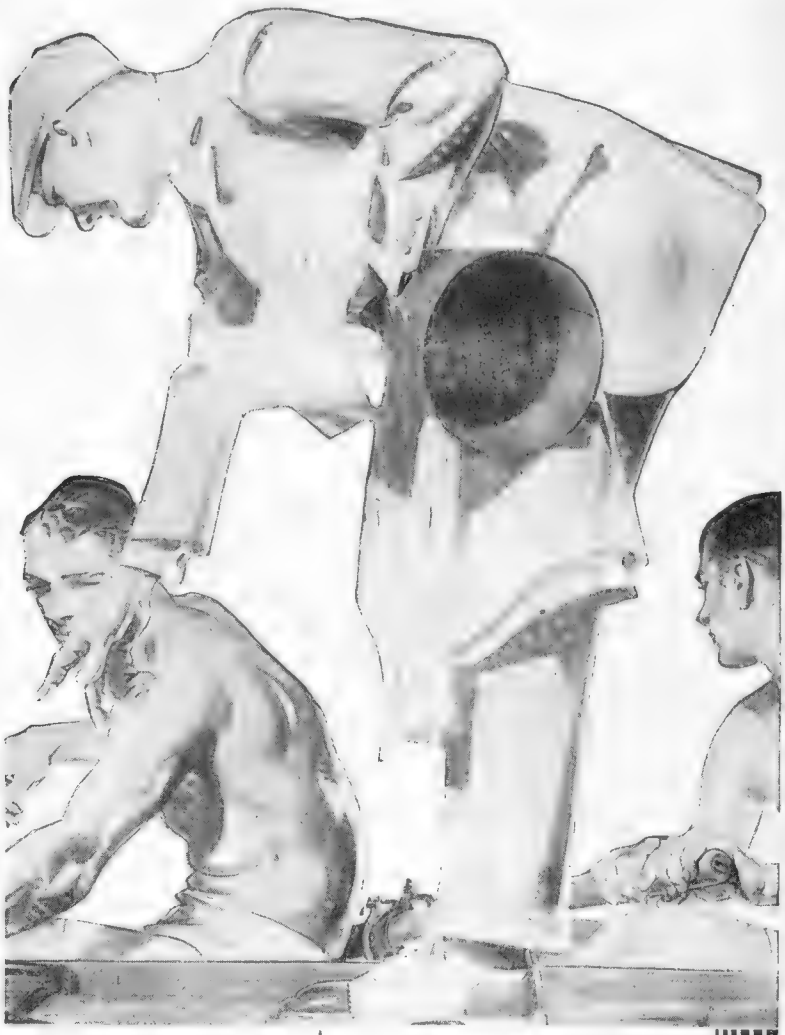
The Beauty Box

BUSINESS girls who go limp and yawny about four o'clock in the afternoon are in need of lessons in hygiene. Bad eating habits, wrong kinds of food, are usually at the root of the trouble. Eating luncheon too quickly in a noisy, crowded restaurant upsets the digestion, interferes with assimilation. The girl who faces [illegible] and brings home the bacon must consider the importance of keeping well, being energized, looking tiptop. Understand health unfits a woman for the job, casts a cloud of depression over the mind, raises the dickens with her complexion.



PULLING POWER!

The Boston Evening American has it... Kennedy's says so. Famed as quality merchants, renowned for value-giving, they shrewdly seek both quality and value in advertising media. When they find a newspaper with that combination, they buy with confidence. In October, November and December of 1931, Kennedy's used 174.8% more lineage in the Boston Evening American than they used in all of 1929 and 1930. Today, when many clothiers are singing the blues, Kennedy's forges ahead to increased volume in dollars and units. The Boston Evening American proudly points to the part it has played in helping Kennedy's achieve this distinction. Other merchants will do well to follow Kennedy's leadership.

"Impatient Maiden" Director Reveals Screen Technique

By JAMES WHALE

Director of "The Impatient Maiden," at RKO Keith's

Three years ago, comedy was vastly more difficult to put on the screen than drama. But the advent of talking pictures has completely reversed the condition.

The [illegible] school of [illegible] very little that was [illegible] funny. The [illegible] of an [illegible] brought a shout of laughter from the audience, [illegible] was ludicrous [illegible] humorous.

One [illegible] which always [illegible] of [illegible] the fact that [illegible] between [illegible] could not [illegible] the witty [illegible] might be [illegible] certain [illegible] and the spark of [illegible] while the [illegible] were engaged in reading the [illegible] which followed [illegible] with a [illegible] of action, largely physical and more easily interpreted.

The talking picture has brought before the audience both action and dialogue at the same time, and this has vastly heightened the [illegible] and effectiveness of the comedy writer and director.

[illegible] on the other hand [illegible] was not so much a necessity since each member of the audience was perhaps unconsciously putting his own interpretation on the scene, and on the lines which were being spoken by the actors.

But the advent of the talking picture has brought every director to the realization that even the most serious scene is apt to create a [illegible] simply because the dialogue does not ring true.

Series of Film Comedies to Be Made for Radio by Edna May Oliver

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, March 11. You'll be seeing Edna May Oliver often this coming year. A campaign is to be waged by Radio to try to win for her the popularity that the one and only Marie Dressler enjoys throughout the country.

Louella O. Parsons

Miss Oliver is an expert comedienne and during the brief year she has been on the screen she has been building a place for herself. With the right picture who knows what she may do. Her first picture under the David O. Selznick regime is "Hell Bent for Election," a story written especially for her by S. J. Perlman.

Ralph Murphy and Zion Myers are the directors— and we are advised to keep our eye on this one, because it's the first of a series of Oliver comedies that are to feature her.

Another prize fight picture for Wallace Beery. Why not with "The Champ" romping merrily along as one of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's very best money makers? This one is called "Flesh" and it was especially written for Wally by Edmund Goulding.

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

By LOUIS SOBOL

Odd Bits From the Envelopes!

An interesting letter from Samuel [illegible], representative for Mrs. Jack (Legs) Diamond, who takes exception to a statement in this column regarding the respective [illegible] salaries of the late gangster's wife and of his sweetheart, Marion (Kiki) Roberts. "I do not believe [illegible] [illegible] Mrs. Diamond received for her three weeks with the Minskys $2400 and Miss Roberts received only a few hundred dollars more for the same period of time. Another thing, Mrs. Diamond was the one who [illegible] [illegible] she heard that Kiki would be with her on the same bill for that one day she refused so I had to change the bookings around. I feel in all justice to Mrs. Diamond and in view of the damage you have done her by making the [illegible] statement about the salaries that you owe her some vindication in your column. We therefore [illegible] in your own words."

From a confidential source in Hollywood: "Boris Ingster, young Russian producer and writer, who came to America with Eisenstein and married the widow of New York's once famous caricaturist Hans Stengel (remember he killed himself in a fit of despondency?) probably holds Hollywood's cinch lest job. He has been working on a famous Russian story for the past year, and the story is still as far from actual production as ever. He just returned from a short visit to Mexico—just across the border—to straighten out his visitor's visum. This has developed into quite a racket out here, any number of foreigners threatened with expulsion taking a leisurely drive to Caliente or some other point south of the border and comfortably re-entering the country with a full-fledged emigrant's vision though it means they come back a couple of centuries lighter."

"Gregory Mason, the bearded explorer," writes Russell Rhodes, "came down from the Connecticut hills last week for a few days at the Players' Club prior to sailing for the Yucatan. He's heading a mission for the American Museum of Natural History. Central America is his happy hunting ground, and there among Indian tribes he picks up rarities in the line of pottery, rugs and wampum for consignment to this country. Mason has discovered some Maya ruins and half forgotten palaces of the Inca kings. He finds New York a lonesome spot, except for Edwin Booth's old home in Gramercy Park."

Why, asks Sam Edwards, "don't you get your readers to send in the funniest signs they've seen in dressing rooms. Some of the familiar ones are 'Don't tell us what you did at the Palace—do it here.' And 'We know our audience is terrible. How is your act?' And the niftiest I think is 'Please do not send out your laundry until the manager has seen your act.' There must be some even funnier than the ones I've mentioned."

The Spider Proof Com[illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] which they park rent free in these lots. Some of the garagemen peeved at losing all this business complained to the police department which started to ban the car owners to court. But [illegible] [illegible] for a loop. So everybody parks free in the lot, everybody that is except the lawyer. He made enough fees to buy himself a new car and to park it safely in a garage for the next 12 months."

"Well, well," wellwells Sig Wachter from Warrensburg, N. Y., "So I stirred old Billy Ganes out of his hole up in Williamsport. He was a great little fellow on Broadway in his day but like many others has passed out of the picture. Do you recall some of the old theaters—The Bowery Museum, for instance, where Fanny Herring played for several years; the Windsor on the Bowery with Frank Murtha as manager; the Star at 13th street; Niblo's Garden and the Black Crook; Harrigan and Hart's on Broadway and then to the Old London Streets when they burned down; Tony Pastor's on Broadway; Herrman, the Magician's theater on Broadway, afterwards called Lotta's Theater; Metropolis Theater in the Bronx—and others? How many of today's actors ever played these famous places, and they were famous in their day as the only amusement places in existence outside of the theater in Huber's Museum, the Academy of Music and the Fourteenth Street Theater downtown and the Empire and Metropolitan Opera House uptown? I had an argument with a New Yorker the other day who claimed that Proctor's East 125th Street Theater was built by Proctor. Oscar Hammerstein built it, thinking the World Fair was coming to Riverside Drive, but it went to Chicago."

A Little Stroll Among Leather Tossers

With Boston suffering all winter from an epidemic of hockey and wrestling [illegible] headlines. [illegible] The old town will break out [illegible] week and the gents of the scrambled ears [illegible] Monday night's Jack Dorval vs. Arturo DeKuh [illegible] Arena, a bang up popular price hea[illegible] doings. It will usher in next Fr[illegible] Garden in which Jack Sharkey will make [illegible] appearance since Hector was a pup [illegible] opponents the same evening [illegible] the [illegible] with Jack McCarthy. A [illegible]

Ever hear how the [illegible] DeKuh? Dave Driscoll, secretary of the Brooklyn Baseball Club, got an eyeful of Arturo juggling the satees after a flow over holiday crowd at Ebbets Field. The long lean Italian was picking up the benches and tossing 'em around like pasteboard boxes. Dave suggested to another gent by the same name of Dave Driscoll but no relation that the big, tall rangy son of sunny Italy [illegible] be good ring timber. Driscoll signed him up and was his first manager. Since then Arturo has had a whole [illegible]

WILL DORVAL MAKE DEKUH DO THIS AGAIN?

In his early fights DeKuh exhibited a man sized haymaker But he didn't look like a fighter. He had the face of a student recluse and the dreamy eyes of a violin virtuoso. He was game dead game—we saw him get up after a sixth knockdown but lacked the viciousness on offense that makes for a great ring warrior. They say [illegible], his latest manager, has instilled some of that sought for viciousness into Arturo's system. Maybe he has. But if Phil couldn't shoot pep and viciousness in o Ernie Schaaf it is hard to see how he could have remade the tall Italian. Dan Carroll says Arturo will wind up in the same position you see DeKuh doing mat exercises in above.

Like all managers who sell or lose a meal ticket [illegible] is obsessed with the [illegible] Ernie Schaaf, [illegible] He believes Signor Arturo is the fine Eytalian gent [illegible] Phil figures the Dorval match as a stepping stone into a DeKuh-Schaaf match and the securing of his revenge on the [illegible] In our humble opinion, however, if [illegible] they will be picking up Arturo in little pieces after it. That doesn't mean however that DeKuh hasn't a chance [illegible] The Allegheny Woodsman must have been [illegible] from the barrage of clouts to the [illegible] Schaaf. It was those terrible Wrentham Dynam[illegible] the mid section that sent Jack to the hospital. [illegible] will be in [illegible] favor if he and the [illegible] the same 24 foot squared circle together again.

What with next week's two heavyweight matches Ernie Schaaf shouldn't have to be worrying about having to join the ranks of the unemployed. The Dorval-DeKuh winner if he triumphs in anyway decisive [illegible] will of a [illegible] be picked [illegible] Schaaf opponent. "I have agreed to meet any two men Billy Ames names. If he should pick DeKuh as one of my opponents, I wouldn't worry about that part of the program. I am rooting for Ames to pick a couple of fellows who know how to throw punches, and who are courageous enough to stand up and take a few wallops."

BOSTON CLUB OPENS FINAL ROAD TREK

By BILL [illegible]

Because of a slight miscalculation on the part of Tiny Thompson in the third period, the Bruins went down to a 3 to 2 defeat before the Chicago Blackhawks at the Boston Garden.

With the Bruins and the Hawks deadlocked and less than four minutes to play, Taffy Abel, a former U. S. Olympic team player, broke loose from his own defense.

On his way to the Boston goal, Taffy picked up Johnny Gottselig and Vic Ripley. At the Boston defense Taffy slid the puck over to Gottselig who in turn passed it to Ripley. After this double pass, the puck was returned to Abel, who flipped it in the general direction, but over the Boston net.

Apparently dazzled by the triple pass Tiny reached up and made a wild clutch at the puck which was flying over his head. Unfortunately Tiny made connections with the rubber and brought it down.

The disc took one of those [illegible] known freak bounces and hopped into the goal, for the tally, which moved the Hawks two points nearer the playoffs and held the Bruins in the cellar.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 11—The pitching staff will be Manager Bill McKechnie's only worry when it comes time to reduce the [illegible] to the new 23-player limit.

The Daily Dozen

By Myles T. McSweeney

"There are such things as wrestling rules," writes a mat fan, in refutation of our statement that there wasn't. "Look 'em up in the Museum of Fine Arts."

Sure enough, we found them in an obelisk, whatever that is. Thus are we able to explain how Pat O'Shocker was awarded the decision over Gentleman Jack Washburn although Jack was in the ring and Pat was in the dressing room.

Rule 37, Sec. 6, Part 1, says unequivocally, "that no wrestler may kick another in the face [illegible]" Washburn kicked O'Shocker according to the referee and judges.

And no wrestler wears such small feet.

[illegible] O'Shocker. He says he was simply doing the black bottom and that if O'Shocker was under [illegible]

Asked why he didn't look under his feet to see what interfered with them, Washburn said he thought that it was only a couple of lumps in the canvas.

[illegible]

Another wrestling rule observed more by its breach than its observance, is one relating to punching. A punch on the nose cannot be regarded as a wrestling hold, except when accompanied by hair pulling.

[illegible]

Wrestling authorities inform us that the old rules will be amended as soon as the complete report of the Sino-Japanese fighting is issued.

Yarns From Red Hose

It's difficult to see how they're going to keep Dashiell and Stumpf off the 1932 Red Sox. Both seem to have about everything.

Stumpf has made but a few trips to the plate but the old hits ring out during his short stays.

Bob Quinn testifies to the fact that he's got a good arm. "He nearly caught Myer off second base when Buddy had only a three-foot lead late last season," said Bob. "He can throw that ball like a bullet."

Stumpf is only 5 feet 8 inches and weighs but 155 pounds, which qualifies him for that popular baseball name of "Rabbit."

Dashiell has been picking them up nicely at second base and getting off lightning, accurate throws. He hasn't shown much with the willow as yet but his mark of 325 [illegible] what the [illegible]

SALES TAX IS CALLED MOST EQUITABLE

By B. C. FORBES

CALVIN COOLIDGE and everybody else exhort us to invest generously in life insurance. And this advice has been followed to a creditable extent.

Yet our Washington tax-leviers propose to double the tax on life insurance companies. One insurance president observed to me yesterday, "This is a fine reward for people who have exercised prudent thrift."

Horse Sense in Steel Industry

Here is one industrial president who has the faith and the courage andthe horse-sense to act rationally, to act contrary to the majority of business heads. E. T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corporation, makes this invigorating statement in his annual report:

"Cash could be materially increased at any time we wished by reducing inventories without affecting the efficiency of operations. But as we have ample cash, this would only result in larger bank balances, and it is the opinion of your management that more profit can be made from inventory."

Among other things [illegible] ore in Wisconsin and M[illegible] diately needed [illegible] Doubtless Mr. Weir and [illegible] tions can be conducted more economically now than when the demand for labor, the cost of living and prices of raw materials rise. Incidentally, National Steel managed to make a profit last year.

Long-Range Policies Needed

How soon will our heads of vast enterprises put into practice an equally helpful, long range policy? Few believe that the general price level is likely to sink lower than it has already sunk. The majority view is that an upward turn must inevitably come before very long.

Why then add to unemployment, business stagnation, national depression by persisting in [illegible]

Big Profits of Power Trust Bared by Commission

By M. L. RAMSAY

Washington March 11 (US). In its earlier Power T[illegible] tion half a dozen years ago, the Federal Trade [illegible] quired into the w[illegible] holding companies as it is inquiring on a far vaster scale today.

Were these financial mammoths intended primarily to provide security for investors and better service and rates for consumers, as the power leader, thundered through every instrument of propaganda? Or were they primarily great profit-making machines gouging the consumer?

LACKED FUNDS FOR PROBE

Having neither funds nor men to make first-hand investigation as it is now doing the commission asked the Electric Bond & Share Co. how its huge affiliate American Gas & Electric Co. came to be formed.

Subsequently the commission reported to Congress.

"According to S. Z. Mitchell (then president and now chairman of Electric Bond & Share), the managers of these companies were not far-seeing as managers of Public Utilities, the companies had been unable to raise additional capital funds with which to provide additional facilities.

SURPLUS GROWS FAST

Its surplus grew in the same period from 608,000 to $1,099,000, according to this memorandum. Its total assets increased substantially and the earnings [illegible] companies jumped from $[illegible] to $1,692,000.

In the years after A[illegible] and Electric [illegible] panies and [illegible] it piled up [illegible] $53,000 [illegible] which o[illegible] $1 [illegible] was invested [illegible] went to the E[illegible] Share Co.

A much [illegible] Share enterprise, National Power and Light C[illegible] was built around the American Cities Co. system whose properties actually were in receivership. The Trade Commission's report on its first investigation attributed to Mitchell information that his company was urged to undertake the deal after other efforts to protect American Cities' investors had failed.

But it did not disclose that Electric Bond and Share, according to its own minutes examined in the present investigation, had furthered its plans by restricting the market for American Cities' bonds.

DEAL ARRANGED

The minutes read:

"He (Mitchell) reported that in order to better control the market in handling these matters he had arranged with a number of people who were seeking to buy American cities collateral trust bonds to keep out of the market, with the understanding that the Electric Bond and Share Company would give such persons an opportunity to participate at cost in its acquisitions of the securities of National Power and Light Company through the aforesaid transactions, and he requested authority to carry out this arrangement."

The authority was given.

Moreover, the reports show, the chairman of the protective committee for the holders of these American Cities bonds w[illegible] assisting E[illegible] Bond and Share in connection w[illegible] tion. He was [illegible]

The commission [illegible] what other [illegible] this deal and [illegible] bargain pr[illegible] promised. It was stop[illegible] tracks by a secret code [illegible] ceiving the stock were listed merely as "A. E. Smith, account No. 1," A. E. Smith, account No. 2, and so on.

RICH REWARD

Their reward w[illegible] [illegible] thousand shares of this stock were taken by Electric Bond and Share for its services in reorganizing.

Even income taxes have been made to yield a profit to another holding concern, the New England Power Association. Collecting from each of its subsidiaries all the income tax that would have been due had the subsidiary paid as a separate entity, the Power Association paid a much smaller total of taxes on a consolidated basis, as a unified system.

Approximately $500,000 vanished in this fashion in three mergers alone—those of Electric Power and Light Corporation, the Florida Power and Light Company, and Arkansas Power and Light Company.

STATE ST. Hears:

That the situation as outlined here yesterday is unchanged. The best clue to the destiny of the rally would still seem to lie with the rail group. If confirmation of the penetration of former highs by the industrials is forthcoming, traders will be assured of more determined attacks on the upside resistance. These will probably be successful.

New Haven

Recent flashes from New York have tended to paint the picture in regard to New Haven as hopeless. This is not the true situation. Admittedly the New Haven reports show liabilities to be in ex[illegible] the banks on it's own paper.

Aside from the high regard in which the earning power and [illegible] New Haven are obviously held it is well to look into the reasons that appear behind the borrowings, as well as behind the discrepancy between liabilities and assets. EX-WIRE MEN TODAY HOLDING HIGH PLACES

By FRANK H. MELOON

All over the nation newspapers have been stressing the fact this week that William A. Irvin selected to succeed James A. Farrell next month as president of the U. S. Steel Corp., was a former telegraph operator. A number of prominent executives of today are former telegraphers. President William Kenney, of the Great Northern Railroad was a former Western Union operator.

William A. Irvin

Other one-time telegraph operators here in Boston, according to information furnished us, are Joseph P. Manning, president of the Joseph P. Manning Co.; William P. Hart, president of the Charlestown Five Cents Savings Bank and Edwin [illegible] vice president treasurer and director of the S. S. Pierce Co.

* * *

Among tasks ahead of the New England [illegible] to popularize New England as a summer vacation "playground" is teaching radio singers how properly to pronounce New Hampshire.

* * *

Street gossip earlier had linked a number of names with the U. S. Steel presidency. The first suggested was Sewell Lee Avery, president of both U. S. Gypsum and Montgomery Ward. The second was Eugene P[illegible] vice president of Bethlehem Steel. When Mat[illegible] of New York Edison Co. it was [illegible] to succeed Mr. Farrell.

* * *

Another suggestion heard was that Chairman Myron C. Taylor of U. S. Steel's finance committee might take over the duties of the president, combining them with his own.

* * *

This is very much in line with what B. C. Forbes said this week when he wrote:

"The real head will be Myron C. Taylor, who was installed in 1927 as chairman of the finance committee on the death of Judge Gary, chairman of the corporation. Mr. Taylor stands ace-high with the financial powers that are identified with the Morgan-organized enterprise. A man of wealth and of mature experience, he is regarded as a business statesman of unusual caliber. Like Judge Gary, he was originally a lawyer, not a practical steel man.

The assumption is that Mr. Irvin will concentrate on operating the corporation's mammoth plants. That is his forte. The expectation in the steel industry is that the new president will spend a goodly part of his time out on the firing line, not in his New York office. Most modern managers find it profitable to spend much time at the plants.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

There was little in the news to influence the course of trading.

Further easing of money was disclosed by a new cut in bill rates, foreshadowing a further reduction in the 3 per cent N. Y. rediscount rates.

Market Believed in Accumulation Era

Backing and filling [illegible] in the stock market [illegible] of such a procedure. The fact that the top and bottom average points of each session since last Saturday have been virtually identical has significant appeal from this point of view.

25 Per Cent Gain In Month of Recovery

Much importance is also attached to the apparent resistance encountered by pivotal stocks on minor setbacks from the tops peak established by the current week's rally. An interesting [illegible] the market [illegible] marked a month of recovery [illegible] risen 25 per cent from their extreme lows. How much further such a gain can be extended without a turn in business remains to be seen.

Agree to Curtail Copper Output

Latest reports are that copper producers have agreed on curtailing output to 20 per cent of maximum rated capacity.

Demand Seen for International Silver

National Power Light Demand Speculative

Present activity in National Power & Light common is principally of the speculative variety based on the substantial dividend coverage disclosed in the last 12 months statement. Always favored by good sponsorship, the issue is reported to be receiving similar guidance at the moment despite the sl[illegible] market for utility shares generally. Interests partial to the stock claim its attractiveness lies in the strong cash position of the company and a book value equal to $24.81 a share or 50 per cent above the market price. The company has no near term debt problem, since its next maturities are not due until 2026.

February Railroad Reports Appearing

February railroad statements, reflecting for the first time the 10 per cent wage reduction, will begin to appear shortly. These promise more favorable comparison with a year ago than the January exhibits. Officials of several lines have already indicated betterment last month in preliminary forecasts. The wage reduction figured on a monthly basis means a saving of approximately $15,000,000 [illegible] for higher net revenue in the forthcoming statements. Even if results this year only equal those of corresponding months in 1931, the showing would be quite impressive in view of declines of 20 per cent or more in car loadings.

SPECTATOR Says:

The market continues to show resistance to pressure with support on reactions. This suggests that any favorable news development will bring another effort to put the list up. Professionals have the notion that the $37,000,000 increase in brokers' loans is constructive as indicating greater credit expansion and may decide to try to give stocks a whirl today.

Bond Interest

There is less churning over of stocks by pools these days. Increase in the New York state tax to $4 per 100 shares makes this a costly operation.

Nickel plate 6s have just sold above 74 against a low of 22⅞ this year and 14½ in December. A very sweet rise and something no stock is likely to do in a long time . . . Stocks generally are a back number on money makers in the last few months compared with bonds.

Here and There

Inability of the market to pierce the 90 level on the averages is making chartists generally bearish. The bulls so far have had little to help them other than the improvement in the financial situation and the fact stocks are put up more easily than down. Then too, drying up of liquidation is aid to the bull cause. There were several blocks of stock kicking around Wall Street about a week ago with no buyers. Bids were finally made for these but the owners weren't sure now whether they wanted to sell. . . . Which reflects the improvement in sentiment.

There is said to be quite a scrap on in d[illegible] with the possibility that the shorts may be given an uncomfortable time of it as soon as the market permits.

PRICE CHANGES FOUND SMALL IN WALL ST.

Maximum losses of 1 to 3 points were registered in such issues as U. S. Steel, American Can, American Telephone, Eastman, Allied Chemical and Air Reduction, while issues off fractionally included Bethlehem and Case.

RADIO ISSUE RALLIES

International Telephone was steady, in the face of the dividend omission announced late yesterday. Auburn pushed up five points, then lost most of its gain. Radio preferred "B," a recent soft spot, rallied to show a two point gain.

The curb market continued to display a heavy undertone in the early half of today's session, with a renewal of dribbling liquidation in the run of pivotal leaders influencing a slightly lower level of prices for the list in general.

There was little pronounced change noted in other usually active members of the utility group, although Commonwealth Edison was a firm spot.

CREDIT STRAIN LIFTS

Banking interests who contend the extreme ebb of depression has been reached were particularly impressed with today's new evidences of lifting of credit strain. Investment enthusiasm was tempered somewhat by the prospect of lean earning statements for the first quarter in industry, but nevertheless sentiment was said to have registered unmistakable improvement.

There was an increase of $12,000,000 in monetary gold stocks; circulation declined $39,000,00, showing again that money was being returned to the banks; and clear evidence was set before the public to show that the Federal Reserve Board is taking full advantage of its new powers provided by the Glass-Steagall act to pump credit into the financial structure.

The Reserve banks purchased $25,000,000 of government bonds and $22,000,000 of bills during the week, thus freeing additional money for member banks which was utilized to reduce their indebetedness to the Reserve banks by $80,500,000.

A sign of reviving courage in security markets was furnished by the weekly brokers' loan report, showing a gain of $57,000,000—the sharpest in about a year.

Grains Lower in Chicago Market

Chicago, March 11 (AP)—Influenced by big shipments of wheat from the southern hemisphere grain prices averaged lower early today. Moderating temperatures in domestic winter wheat territory were also a bearish factor. Opening unchanged to ⅜ down, wheat afterward held near the initial range. Corn also started unchanged to ⅜ off and subsequently kept steady.

Atlantic & Pacific Sales $69,860,876

New York, March 11 (AP)—Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. sales for the four weeks ended Feb. 27 totaled $69,860,876 compared with $82,441,142 in the same period of 1931, a decrease of 15.2 per cent. Tonnage sales for the period showed a decrease of 6.1 per cent.

INSURANCE

Family Income Policy Is New Offers Good Protection for Family Lump Sum Besides Monthly Payment Stipulated Amount for Beneficiary

By Frank F. Loomis

The Family Income policy is a comparatively new form of life insurance now written by many of the old line legal reserve companies. Such a contract enables a man with family responsibilities to provide an income for his family when it is most needed in the event of his death when the children are young, and the monthly income guaranteed by the Family Income policy would usually run through the peak period of the burden of educating the children.

As an illustration, for a man now age 35, where the income period is placed at 20 years, the contract pays in the event of the insured's death during the income period, $100 a month for the remainder of the period to the beneficiary, or $1200 a year, and at the end of the income period it pays, in addition to the monthly income, already paid, $10,000 in cash.

* * *

For instance, if death occurs immediately after the policy is issued, $1200 a year would be paid to the beneficiary for a period of 20 years, or a total amount of $24,000 in monthly payments of $100 and at the end of the 20-year income period the beneficiary would receive the cash sum of $10,000, making total payments received of $34,000.

In further explanation, if death should occur to the insured say 10 years after date of issue of the policy, $100 a month, or $1200 a year, would be paid to the beneficiary for a period of 10 years (the remainder of the income period), or a total amount of $12,000 and at the end of that time, a further payment of $10,000 cash would be paid, making a total amount of payments received by the beneficiary of $22,000.

In other words, if the insured should die any time prior to 20 years, the beneficiary would receive $100 a month for the unexpired term of 20 years from the date of the policy and then would receive the principal sum of $10,000. Of course, if the insured lived 20 years or longer, there would be no monthly income paid, but the sum of $10,000 cash would be paid to his beneficiary immediately in case of death at any time.

The annual deposit required to secure this family income policy, described above, for a man 35 years of age is about $370. At the end of 20 years, if the insured is still alive, his annual deposits would be about $305. These annual deposits would be reduced each year by the dividend earnings of the company.

* * *

The great feature of this contract is that the wife or family is guaranteed a stipulated monthly income in case death should occur to the insured prior to 20 years, and they will still have coming from the company at the end of the 20-year period the face of the policy, $10,000 in cash.

The family income policy is particularly applicable to a man who has a wife and small children, as this monthly income would go a long ways to the support and education of the children in the event of the insured's death, until the principal sum is received.

A man taking out such a contract when his children are young, say under 10 years of age, would be providing an income for their support during the most needed period of their lives, and by the end of the income-paying period they would undoubtedly be self-supporting.

While the principal appeal of the family income policy is to a man with family responsibilities, yet the need of a stipulated income during a temporary period applies to most of the situations in life,

West Point Mfg. Co. Passes Dividend

West Point Manufacturing Co. has passed the dividend due at this time. Three months ago $1 per share was paid. The current dividend omission is the first since 1889.

During the year ended October 31, 1931 this large southern cotton goods manufacturer had an operating profit of close to $300,000, but after inventory markdown, depreciation charges of double the normal amount, and payment of dividends, there was a net reduction in surplus of $1,904,748 to $7,527,586.

England, too, has her crime problem. An item in a London paper says—

For giving another man the "raspberry," as a police constable explained it, a Whitstable youth named Sidney Hoghin was fined 10s. for disorderly conduct at Canterbury.

Supt. Goldsmith stated that he had received numerous complaints about these "raspberries," and he had brought the case to try to stop the practice.

The rest just complicate the scheme.

Q. AND A. DEPARTMENT

Dear A. Bella—You aren't supposed to snag a handful of sandwiches every time the hostess passes them, you cluck. She was just being polite. What were you being? Mortified.

Ans.—Aunt Bella has no excuses to make and none to offer. She will take from the rich to feed the poor, who on Saturday night will form a sandwich line which reaches from my breakfast nook clear to the Victrola.

Aunt (Robin Hood) Bella.

RADIO STAR GAZING

Hub Hails Well Known Air Artists

By N. F. T.

A broadcasters convention would perhaps be one very good reason for having so many top notch radio people visiting in our midst. Even so, we have no convention.

No special event is responsible, either. They have just come together in the course of their weekly work. Call it a coincidence, for want of something easier to spell.

AT THE FESTIVE BOARD

Yesterday noon found Governor Ely seated at luncheon with Rudy Vallee and Graham McNamee to his right, while on the other hand (left) no less than Paul Whitman and Ray (Old Topper) Perkins were seated. Graham acted as master of ceremonies. Purposely or otherwise, he ran true to form by mispronouncing the governor's name (Eli, said Mac).

However, our head man from Capitol Hill was in fine fettle as usual, forgiving the ace NBC announcer forthwith, but not without touching on the fact facetiously.

FUTURE STAR SHINES

Then there was that little lady who won Paul Whiteman's New England auditions, Alice O'Leary is her name. Naturally she is quite thrilled, yet surprisingly cool and gracious nevertheless. So much so that she adroitly avoided revealing her age, even if the "colyum" did find out she has two little youngsters. Tommy is four years old and Alice is aged two. We may all be sure Alice O'Leary is rehearsing relentlessly today, for tonight her voice goes out (WBZ) from coast to coast, supplemented by Paul Whiteman's Orchestra. There is also little doubt but what folks at 47 Sheridan ave. in Medford will be listening.

Law School Dean Is "Good Samaritan"

Winston Churchill, prominent British statesman, now in Boston, was interviewed by remote control last night (WAAB) when The Trumpeteers program, coming from New York, between 10 and 10:30, was interrupted for Boston to slide in. You'd meet them as Eddie Kasper and Jerry Slattery . . . The other two broadcast daily except Sundays between 8:30 and 9 a. m., causing more than a few pieces of toast to burn hereabouts . . . Their names are Warren Hull and Harry Michaels . . . Jolly John McNamara announces both comedy bits . . . Congress Should Adopt an Adequate Sales Tax

Democrats in Congress will make a serious mistake if they fail to include in their new tax bill a sales tax of sufficient amount to balance the budget without resorting to further burdensome income taxes.

It is not enough to impose a sales tax of two or three per cent. Canada has a sales tax of four per cent. The United States should impose a sales tax of at least five per cent.

A five per cent sales tax generally applied will raise a large amount of revenue—as much as $1,500,000,000, it is estimated.

Then, if Congress will suspend debt redemption, as it ought to do during the depression, the Democratic tax program will be tremendously popular.

But imposing an inadequate sales tax and supplementing it with increased income taxes will make the Democratic tax program extremely unpopular, and that program will not relieve the tax burdens about which the whole country is complaining.

After ten years' trial Canada's four per cent sales tax has become an integral part of the Canadian fiscal system. It is as popular in Canada today as it is possible for any form of taxation to be.

If the United States will follow the example of Canada and adopt a five per cent sales tax experience will vindicate its wisdom and it will grow in popularity, as it produces revenue without adding to the burdens of the people.

Lowell on Primary

He Misjudges Sentiment Again

President Lowell, of Harvard, in his efforts to establish a so-called pre-primary convention to nominate candidates for public office, is as unaware of the public sentiment of the people of Massachusetts as when he urged them to join the League of Nations and to declare an economic boycott upon Japan.

Our people do not desire to be involved in the wars of other countries. They do not desire to surrender their Nation's sovereignty to any super-government such as the League of Nations. Nor are they ready to surrender their own sovereignty in their selection of candidates to serve them in public office.

The pre-primary scheme, as our good neighbor, The Post, says, is like the camel poking its nose under the tent of the popular primary, which the people of Massachusetts cherish as their inherent right. The first step of the pre-primary convention would be to "recommend" the nomination of certain candidates for public office. The next and final step would be to tip over the popular primaries and to get us back to the corrupt, boss-controlled convention system in which the candidates for office would be chosen "in a smoke-filled room at 2 o'clock in the morning."

The people are willing to take their education from Dr. Lowell just as they would take their law from a good lawyer. But they are not willing to take their politics from him, because he is inherently a conservative who has not kept step with the march of the people toward the rule of their own affairs.

A Liberal Jurist

Judge Charles H. Donahue, who has been appointed a justice of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, is said by those familiar with his work and his philosophy to be a liberal jurist.

As a Judge of the Superior Court he has demonstrated a kindly, uncruel attitude toward the casual offender brought before him for disposition. If he can infuse the Supreme Court with his attitude of liberality and progressivism, his service will be much worth while.

For several generations, when we had men of the type of Oliver Wendell Holmes on the bench, the Massachusetts Supreme Court was outstanding in this country. Its decisions were democratic and forward-looking. They spoke justice for the average man, without fear or prejudice and without toadying to the influential interests in the community. They were read with interest everywhere. They were quite largely copied into the law of many other States.

In the past few years, the Court has become increasingly conservative and increasingly uninteresting. Judge Donahue is understood to represent the liberal viewpoint which can be of value to the court as well as to the people of the State whose laws will be interpreted by it.

'Father' Is Indorsed

The answer came back from the classmen, "My father."

Splendid. Father can stick out his chest a foot. He is not regarded merely as the human cash drawer to pay the family bills. When we see young men proudly and unanimously expressing their affectionate respect for the head of the home we can figure that the country has not gone to pot entirely.

New York Day by Day

Thoughts While Strolling

NEW YORK, March 11—Thoughs while strolling: Just as Owney Madden was crashing the Sutton Place teas, this had to happen! Leslie Howard's a thin edition of Conrad Nagel. And Frank Buck, the animal tamer, with a white eye patch, could pass for Floyd Gibbons. Tony Hughes.

Harlan Dixon always carries a book. Lit-er! Why don't they pronounce Houston street like the Houston in Texas? The abbreviated "Inc." radiates an influence but means nothing. A horse ring of the old sentimental 90's rusting in an old 49th street wall. Push cart races in imported limousines.

Rex Cole, a Port Huron, Mich., boy, who made good in the city. One word description of Lillian Gish—girlish. Russell Patterson graying at the temples. A favorite Broadwayite—Billy Moore. Overheard: "Two of her drinks and they laid me out like a rug." Katherine Freeze, the young mannequin, with snow white hair.

Hard to imagine Lowell Thomas was once one of the hard boys around hell-roaring Cripple Creek. That girl taxi driver is remindful of Winnie Lightner. The Rialto's best-dressed detective, "Duke" Broderick. Stanley Rinehart and Ring Lardner bear a resemblance. Ben Ali Haggin grows plump.

Cobina Wright of the Social Register. Who conducts a Sutton Place supper club. That fugitive line running through my head all day: "Runs wild a clamor in the thorny scrub." Maybe I'm getting balmy. (Voice: Getting?) And will I tear into that upside down cake this evening!

* * *

Lowell Thomas, incidentally, is Grand Giraffe of the Tall Club, a worthy organization of romantic glossarians. Members offer a lofty sacrifice to veracity. It's the duty of each to give panache and altitudinous devotion to the Great American Whopper.

* * *

Dorothy Parker has high-hatted more editors and book publishers than any writer of her day and retained their profound admiration. She answers no letters, telephone calls or frantic telegrams. But when coming upon those who besiege her, seems startled into wide-eyed, disarming innocence. For almost everything save writing she expresses the wholesome vigor of an entire hockey team. Although she has a ready cuss word for almost every editorial shop, she has to be wheedled out of her copy, often a paragraph at a time.

* * *

From Paris zips another story about Gilbert White, the painter. Mr. White, with Michelangelo majesty and inartistic victoriousness of a bathing beauty, affects hair to his broad shoulders, an Elbert Hubbard tie and a wide Latin Quarter hat. With an American friend he cater-cornered across the Place de la Concorde the other week. Toward him came one of those incredibly filthy and ragged artists with a wild mop of hair and features blurred by tippling. Mr. White walked almost into him, stepped quickly aside and exclaimed: "Pardon, I though I was looking into a mirror."

* * *

On White's visit last Fall he was tossed a binge on Long Island. Afterward the guests piled into waiting limousines to ride home. For some reason there was no place for the artist. "It's all right," he said. "I'll trot behind and bark." And what is more, he did, for several blocks.

* * *

A dull play offered a brief moment last night. A strange lady in the next seat demanded the lady in front remove her hat. She did and her hair ballooned to the proportions of a nail keg. And I silently trilled a trio of goodies!

Back home post-card: "Where do you get that coeur flottant marvellieux stuff? You were brought up on turnip greens, corn bread and black strap molasses."

But do I handle store vittles now! You know, the little finger high in the air!

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

"Proudly We Report—"

"Proudly we report to our forefathers that the Republic is more secure, more constant, more powerful, more truly great than at any other time in its history."

—President Hoover's Bicentennial address, Feb. 22, 1932.

IT WAS after midnight but I could not sleep. There was something wrong with the night—

I dressed and went down to the hotel lobby. Girls, stripped to the waist—their breasts upheld by jeweled straps—floated in whirls of tulle, in gleaming swirls of satin, across padded plush.

Lights hung thick as fruit in the scented tropical air . . . crystal and topaz fruit, clustered in golden leaves, wreathed around long colonnades of marble trunks . . . a girl's laugh broke—fluttered like a blue butterfly among the fruit—

Thick, gleaming blades of glass revolved. I passed out into the street.

The streets were nearly empty. There had been a little rain. The asphalt gleamed—oily black as flood water.

Lights gushed and blurred . . . dripped in slow gouts of crimson . . . broke to globes of scarlet, sapphire, amber on the gleaming black . . . quivered in rainbow pools.

On either side, the buildings heaved themselves into the night. Basalt cliffs, rimmed with silver, tiled with crystal plaques, rearing enormously against a stormy sky—

Presently, startled, I found that I had come into an alley which ran behind a row of restaurants and hotels. Very dark here. Only one light, guttering yellow in the thick, sour air. Slime underfoot. I stumbled, groping my way—

Something was moving ahead of me.

Something was creeping past me—as a sick rat creeps. Furtive dashes—then a slow, listless drifting.

Through the entire length of the alley, many Somethings moving—

Stooping—pawing aimlessly—

Hovering briefly—

Going on—vanishing in the darkness—

Further on, two or three scrambling together in sudden excitement . . . flopping at each other . . . grabbing with weak fury—

I drew nearer. They vanished. One, hurrying past, turned her face. A woman's face. Young? Old? I could not tell. The record was erased. Time did not matter any longer to that face. Vanity did not matter. Only one thing mattered. FOOD! Food . . . any kind of food.

My God!

So that was it.

I'd heard, but I hadn't believed. People living at night, out of the garbage cans? Thousands of people—in every city? It wasn't true. It couldn't be true. It was just another one of those stories.

But it was true!

These Things scuttling through the darkness . . . these flopping, hovering, brooding, fumbling things were—People! American people! People like myself—

I stumbled. Caught at a doorway.

Falling down obvious to the long darkness of the tortured night—

Fat, sure, oblivious—

Just Folks

The Golfing Parson's Trio

A golfing parson said to me,
As we stood chatting on the tee,
"This club of mine's not much to see,
'Tis sadly out of date,
The shaft is bent, the winding frayed;
But many a game with it I've played,
And many a shot with it I've made,
Not far, but fairly straight.
You see, for sport or worldly strife,
With three old things I'm fixed for life.

"I have my Bible, old and torn,
With here and there its pages worn.
It serves me still each Sunday morn
As would a Bible new;
My prayer book, thirty years or more,
From day to day I've fingered o'er.
No modern prayer book in the store
Could better see me through.
And likewise, though it isn't classy,
I have this ancient, battered brassie.

"Thus three true friends for life's success
Exultantly I now possess.
I could not get along with less,
But have no wish for more.
My Bible serves its noble end,
My prayer book comforts as a friend,
Upon this brassie I depend
For all a brassie's for.
'Old Faithfuls' are these precious three,
All growing worn and frayed with me."

The House and Tariff: Idle Money, Idle Men

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Boston Evening American.

THE TAX BILL to raise enough money over and above normal to meet the most appalling deficit in the Federal Treasury necessarily bears down hard on the people. It is impossible to raise almost a billion and a quarter in one year without imposing hardships on the citizen. But the House was not confronted with the problem of doing it or not doing it—there was no alternative.

The nation's credit, the value of its bonds are at stake. It seems only yesterday, when President Coolidge was solemnly telling Europe that it could not expect help from us until she had put her house in order by balancing her budgets. That is our job now.

And the House has probably done the best possible with the least possible hardship on the people. An effort may be made on the floor to raise as much as $350,000,000 of the amount required by the authorization of 2.75 per cent beer with a tax upon it. There is little probability that this will succeed. Prohibition has deprived us of an enormous revenue and if we want to keep it we must pay the price.

We have received a number of letters asking why the Democratic House does not do something about the tariff. Something has been done: all that can be done with the President waiting a veto of a general revision, and in view of the world conditions brought about largely by our stupid action in building our Chinese wall against trade.

There can be no general revision so long as the legislative and executive departments are politically opposed.

Our Trouble Is Not Idle Money But Idle Men

Some interesting observations were made this week when the President and others launched the anti-hoarding campaign over the radio. There is no excuse for hoarding now. Everything humanly possible has been done to safeguard the banks. There is no danger in that quarter now if ordinary judgment and common sense are used in choosing the depository.

But the purpose of the anti-hoarding campaign is not merely to get hidden money out of hiding, but to get it in use—to put money to work.

Senator Robinson said:

"If every unemployed dollar in the United States should be put to work tomorrow—made to perform the purpose for which it was intended—unemployment would be diminished, business would commence to revive, and confidence would take the place of fear."

Will getting the money out of hiding and into banks necessarily put it to work these days? Many of the banks are overflowing with idle money today. Business men have not been seeking loans for the expansion of their business. Money not in hiding but in banks has been idle—because of the collapse of trade. And bankers cannot be expected to put their money out on purely speculative enterprises. Only through the restoration of normal trade can prosperity be restored.

Is it possible that our statesmen cannot understand that our trouble is not idle money but idle men?

* * *

How to Restore Trade

There is a way to put millions of idle men to work on wages that will be spent in the restoration of trade.

Suppose the Administration would condescend to consider a five-billion-dollar prosperity loan for the building of national highways that are needed?

The President says:

Because it is the "safest risk," the moment such a loan were offered the money in hiding not only would emerge but would go to work and put idle men to work. With these millions of idle men on wages, trade would have a chance. The restoration of trade would be a blessing to the merchant; and his demand on the factories for goods would put more idle men to work in the shops.

The Brookhart Proposal

Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, is a progressive Republican with a progressive program to end unemployment that all progressives in Congress should be glad to support.

Convinced that "transportation is the life blood of the nation," Iowa's progressive Senator calls upon Congress to construct 25,000 miles of trunk highways covering every section of the country.

The Brookhart program authorizes the construction of three ocean-to-ocean roadways, two highways running north and south on each coast, two intermediate highways through the Middle West, Southwest and Far West.

In addition to these main routes, this program calls for a system of feeder routes connecting the capital of every State with one or more of the national highways.

Estimates by experts fix the cost to the Federal Government of this unified system of national highways at approximately $2,000,000,000.

The Brookhart proposal fits logically into the plan of Senator La Follette to launch a nation-wide public works program at a cost of more than $5,000,000,000.

If Congress will adopt the prosperity bond issue long advocated by the Hearst newspapers, the national system of highways urged by Senator Brookhart can be constructed and there will be ample funds in addition to build the other public works called for in the La Follette program.

"With the jobless employed again at gainful occupation," as Senator Brookhart truly says, "with money in circulation and with buying restored, we shall once more return to a sound and healthy basis."

Judge Richard W. Irwin

Judge Richard W. Irwin of the Massachusetts Superior Court has been gathered to his fathers. His first trade was as a machinist. He played the cornet in the town band, the violin in the town orchestra. He went into the house furnishing business. He served in the militia and in town and State politics. He joined many lodges and fraternities. All through life he loved the friendship of his fellow-man. That is why he was a kindly judge. That is why those who knew him will always revere him as plain "Dick" Irwin.

Shirtsleeve Diplomacy

New York custom clothes cutter says:

"What this country needs are more optimistic men who will buy $75 shirts."
